SEE JOKE IN MERGER 'HEARING'

In spite of the fact that a majority of the legislators declared in favor of a thorough investigation of the AMERICAN'S "trolley grab" charges against the New Haven road, the Joint Committee on Rules today revealed a desire to sidetrack a special probe by arranging for a perfunctory hearing next Wednesday.

A poll made by AMERICAN reporters in both branches of the Legislature last week showed that the ratio in favor of a full inquiry was nine to one.

Proof Was Offered.

The AMERICAN offered proof, documentary and otherwise, to show that the campaign of the so-called Hill Towns Association in favor of legislation to have the New Haven road acquire direct control of all of the trolley lines in Western Massachusetts was financed by the New Haven Railroad and was not, as the railroad pretended, a "spontaneous movement on the part of a sorely-harassed public."

Senator Charles B. Blanchard of Somerville, who is a member of the Joint Committee on Rules and also of the Street Railway Committee, which has before it the trolley merger bill, today announced that the committee would give a public hearing on the Stevens order for investigation next Wednesday, at which "anybody having information are asked to please come up and give it to the committee."

Look On Hearing as Joke.

Legislators who favored a full inquiry today regarded next Wednesday's hearing as "a joke." They said it would be nothing but an ineffective formality at which it would be impossible to get at the true facts. They suggested that a special committee be appointed to investigate the charges that the New Haven had lavished thousands of dollars upon the Hill Towns Association to foist its plot to absorb all the street car lines in the western part of the State. They said the committee should be given the power to summon witnesses, to put them under oath and to demand the production of books and papers.

If this course were followed the AMERICAN promises to offer indisputed evidence in support of its charges against the New Haven's methods to monopolize trolley service in the hill districts.

Five members of the Committee on Street Railways are said to be in favor of a drastic inquiry. They are Representatives Sterns of Marblehead, Worrall of Attleboro, Daly of Boston, Hennebery of Worcester, and Douglass of East Boston.

Prominent among those who champion a probe are Representatives Birdsey of Adams in the Berkshire district, Mahoney of Worcester, Hall of Pittsfield, Meaney of Blackstone, and Washburn of Worcester.

FIRST PICTURES FROM THE RED SOX TRAINING CAMP

FAVOR LEAVE FOR MARRIED TEACHER TO BE MOTHER

NEW YORK, March 6.—Mrs. Frank D. Edgell, a Brooklyn High School teacher, has been recommended for a year's leave of absence without pay in order that she may bear and nurse a child. The Edgells live at No. 1418 East Seventeenth street, Brooklyn. Mr. Edgell teaches in the same school where his wife does. Mrs. Edgell made application to the Board of Education for a year's leave, but the Board of Education denied the request. Now the high school committee has recommended that Mrs. Edgell's request be granted.

Man and Daughter Asphyxiated by Gas; Pulmotor Failed

John H. Mackey, a Swampscott antique furniture dealer, and his fifteen-year-old daughter Elsie were asphyxiated at their home, No. 634 Humphrey street, Swampscott today. The Lynn Gas Company sent a pulmotor over in the house by automobile with Medical-Examiner Pinkham, but for the first time in Greater Boston the pulmotor failed to bring the gas victims back to life.

Mackey was sixty years of age. His shop is known to hundreds of North Shore summer people, who have bought antiques at his establishment. Mackey and his daughter lived in an apartment above the store.

They used to have a gas store, but recently it was taken out. The pipe was left in the wall. It is thought that when Mackey hung a towel on the cut-off last night the cock turned and the gas escaped.

Bensenio Porto smelled gas. He traced it to the Mackey apartment. He broke in the door. The father had been dead three hours and the daughter about an hour. Porto notified the police, and they in turn sent in a hurried call for the pulmotor. The gas rescue men almost brought little Elsie back to life.

OLEO SALE COSTS BOSTON DEALER $20

Louis M. Kanum of No. 135 M street, South Boston, charged with selling oleomargarine without a license, was fined $20, and Charles F. Brow of No. 919 East Broadway, that district, for selling milk below standard, was fined $15 by Judge Fallon today. The case of Alida Witter, who conducts a restaurant at No. 307 Congress street, charged with serving oleomargarine to guests, was continued to Tuesday, March 11.

KILLS HIMSELF IN CAMBRIDGE BRIDGE TOWER

Charles H. Miller, a middle-aged well-dressed Woonsocket, R. I., man, climbed high up the winding staircase into one of the concrete towers on the new Cambridge bridge today and shot himself through the heart with a thirty-two-calibre Colt automatic revolver.

He died before people in the noonday crowds who were crossing the great bridge could reach his side. The reason for his act is unknown.

Miller is believed to be a prominent Rhode Island Mason. Cards found in his pockets, when the body was taken to Litchfield's undertaking rooms, state that he is a member of Palestine Commandery, Knights Templar, of Providence. The clocks were just striking twelve when the sound of a revolver shot came from the open window in the bridge turret.

There were many people passing to and fro on the bridge and some of them rushed to the door of the tower. The sound of the shot was somewhat deadened by the walls of the turret.

Those who went up the tower stairs found Miller lying on the concrete floor. He was dead.

Someone telephoned Police Station No. 2, at Cambridge, and the body was taken to Litchfield's morgue. A search was begun for relatives.

COLD WAVE COMING.

Decidedly colder Friday, with the mercury falling as low as 15 degrees above, is the prediction which the weather man makes today. Following possible snow or rain squalls this afternoon, the temperature will drop rapidly, and the frosty condition will continue through to Saturday. Fair weather is promised for Friday and Saturday with brisk westerly winds.

Lipton Challenge Reaches New York Under Old Rules

NEW YORK, March 6.—Sir Thomas Lipton's fifth challenge for an American Cup match is today in the hands of the officials of the New York Yacht Club, but the contents of the challenge will not be made public until after the next meeting of the club, which is to be held on March 27. The challenge was issued through the Royal Ulster Yacht Club of London and brought to New York on the Oceanic.

Sir Thomas, it is said, has overcome his prejudice against the "deed of gift" rules and his challenge today is said to be for a series of races under the old rules. If this is true the members of the New York Yacht Club will have to accept or else forfeit the trophy to the Irish tea king. This means the building of a new boat, as the Reliance, which successfully defended the cup ten years ago, has been out of the water nine years—too long to be depended upon.

Helen Taft's $5,000 Dog, for Whom She Wept, Has Returned

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Neemie, Miss Helen Taft's $5,000 Italian poodle, which strayed away from the White House on Tuesday, and for which the police of Washington have made unremitting search, found itself early today.

A maid in the home of Miss Taft's aunt, Mrs. Thomas Laughlin, was awakened by the shrill barking of the dog and let him in. A telegram was dispatched at once to Miss Taft, asking whether Neemie should be shipped to Augusta, Ga., where the Taft family now is, or whether it should be kept here until they come North again.

The dog, to which Miss Taft is much attached, was given by King Victor Emanuel of Italy to former Secretary of the Navy Moyer, who presented the animal to Miss Taft.

RAY COLLINS FAILS TO SIGN WITH RED SOX

Ray Collins, the only veteran left-hander on the Red Sox world's championship staff, failed to show up today for transportation to training quarters at Hot Springs with the main body of Sox tomorrow, and it was announced at the team's headquarters in the Tremont building that hope had been given up of inducing the big southpaw to sign a contract for this year.

Unless President McAleer or Pitcher Collins yields, the champions will start the season without a seasoned port side pitcher, a thing this has ever occurred to a baseball team prominent in the big league running.

It means the loss to baseball of the greatest master of control among the big league left-handers and to the Red Sox of the man who, coming into form late in July for the first time last year, won fourteen and lost only eight games, for a percentage of .636, ranking him tenth among American League pitchers.

"I haven't heard a word from Collins since he came down here two weeks ago to talk about his contract," said President McAleer today. "I guess he has decided to try a season of farming. I offered him a contract that I thought was fair, but he demanded more money. If I thought he was worth more to the club, I would gladly give him more. But I can't see that he is worth more to us than the sum I offered."

Collins reported two weeks ago weighing about 193 pounds, about 15 pounds overweight. He said that he would retire from the game unless he received what he believed he was worth. He did not appear to be enthusiastic over returning to the Sox at the figure offered, and intimated that he was as much interested in his own ventures in and about Burlington, Vt., as he was in pitching for the Red Sox.

McAleer and Manager Jake Stahl wanted Collins to sign promptly and begin early training, because he is a man who needs much early work. Last Spring he was out of condition and never became "right" until the season was half done, after which he pitched some remarkable games for the Sox, among them the sixth game in last year's world's series.

Morgan Better, but Unequal to Trip up the Nile

BY CAMILLO CIANFARRA.

CAIRO, Egypt, March 6.—Not being equal to the strain, J. Pierpont Morgan did not accompany a large and jolly party, headed by Herbert L. Satterlee, his son-in-law, on an excursion up the Nile today.

Mr. Satterlee will leave tomorrow on a short visit to Luxor before sailing with Mr. Morgan for Naples, on the steamship Adriatic next Monday.

FRIEDMANN TREATS THREE PATIENTS.

NEW YORK, March 6.—This afternoon Dr. Friedmann gave a public demonstration of his method for the cure of tuberculosis at the People's Home in the presence of half a hundred doctors. Three patients suffering from advanced tuberculosis were treated. Dr. M. Landsman of the People's Home made the injections under Dr. Friedmann's direction.

DYER AND CORBETT URGE SCHOOL BILL.

Superintendent Dyer of the Boston School Department and Corporation Counsel Corbett of Boston appeared before the Legislative Committee on Education today in favor of a bill for the establishment and maintenance of continuation schools in Boston for children between 14 and 16 years who are regularly employed.

3 TRANSPORTS SUNK, IS OTTOMAN CLAIM

VIENNA, March 6.—The Neue Freie Presse received a dispatch from Constantinople today stating that three transports filled with Servian troops have been sunk by the Turkish cruiser Hamidieh near Hagiouroua Bay. Confirmation of the report has not been received.

LYNN MAN TAKES HIS LIFE IN HOTEL

MANCHESTER, N. H., March 6.—Standing in a window on the third floor of the Stark Hotel in Elm street at 5:30 a. m. today, Edward Johnson, thirty years old, of 41 Light street, Lynn, committed suicide by slashing his throat with a razor and then dropped to the street.

STRIKERS ACCUSE POLICE

Three thousand cloak and skirt makers left forty-five shops today and swelled the ranks of the striking Boston garment workers to 12,500 men, women and girls.

Those that went out today were employed in shops in the block surrounded by Summer, Washington and Kneeland streets and Atlantic avenue. The little army of strikers formed in platoons at the corner of Boylston and Tremont street and marched across the Common to headquarters, established at No. 2 and No. 31 North Russell street. The marchers were cheered all along the way.

One arrest was made today.

Charge Police Brutality.

Charges of brutality will be preferred against the police today in connection with arrests they have made during the garment strike. The union announced today that it would apply for warrants against certain patrolmen.

Mrs. Davis R. Dewey, wife of Professor Dewey of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Mrs. William Z. Ripley, wife of Professor Ripley of Harvard, declared that they would back the charges and demand a full investigation.

Dr. Eugene E. Everett, Mrs. Dewey's family physician, has examined some of the girls who allege they were brutally treated by the police, and is ready to testify as to the nature of bruises found.

Says Girl Bit Him.

While the union charges brutality on the part of the police, at least one patrolman today showed marks indicating that it was no easy task arresting the striking girls when occasion demanded. Patrolman James A. Murphy of the Hanover street station showed the marks of teeth on his hand, which he said followed his assisting in the arrest of Rose Levine, twenty, in a riot on Washington street, near Haymarket square.

In obedience to general strike orders issued by the executive committee, 3,000 men and women, members of the Cloak and Skirt Makers' Union 56, Pressers' Union 12 and Cutters' Union 73, walked out of their places of employment at 10 o'clock today.

Woman Is Arrested.

Julia Chelsgold, twenty-one, of No. 30 Emerald street, a striker, was arrested

PLANNING TO REOPEN 2 BIG TRUST CASES

WASHINGTON, March 6.—A proposal to reopen the cases against the Standard Oil and Tobacco Trusts, it was learned on good authority today, will be one of the first matters to come under the consideration of James C. McReynolds, the new Attorney-General.

McReynolds, it is understood, is dissatisfied with the dissolution and reorganization proceedings that took place in both of these cases. He was special prosecutor in the Tobacco case and did not agree with former Attorney-General Wickersham that the reorganization of the Tobacco company re-established fair competition in the Tobacco business.

McReynolds is a firm believer in the worth of the Sherman anti-trust law, but is of the opinion that the criminal and seizure sections of the law should be more thoroughly enforced. He believes that the quickest way to suppress monopolistics methods is to seize under the Sherman law, the goods of illegal combinations in interstate commerce and then to prosecute for criminal sentences against trust magnates.

Another important trust case which will be put up to McReynolds for decision is the government suit against the coffee trust.

Mrs. Wilson Picks Suite That Mrs. Taft Occupied

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, in beginning her four-year term as mistress of the White House, devoted much time to familiarizing herself with the premises, and apportioning rooms to the several members of the presidential family.

President and Mrs. Wilson occupy the sleeping apartments used by both President Roosevelt and Taft. They are in the southwest corner of the mansion and the windows command a view of the White House ellipse to the Washington Monument, the mall, the sweep of the Potomac and the verdant hills of Virginia beyond.

The Misses Wilson have not definitely decided on their apartments. The room in the southeast corner of the residence, fronting on Pennsylvania avenue and looking out over Lafayette Park, probably will be selected by Miss Margaret Wilson, the eldest of the sisters, who will have the first choice. This apartment was occupied by Miss Helen Taft and Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth.

Mrs. Wilson favors a room on the north side as a studio.

GENERAL WOOD IS REAPPOINTED CHIEF OF STAFF

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Major-General Leonard Wood was retained in office as chief of staff of the army by special order of President Wilson today.

Under this arrangement General Wood may remain at the head of the army subject only to the orders of the President. In army circles his continuance in office is accepted as meaning that he will serve two more years as chief of staff under the new administration.

Immediately after breakfast President Wilson issued orders to all his Cabinet officers to be at the White House at 11 o'clock for the first formal meeting of the administration.

It is probable the President will hold four Cabinet meetings a week during the next two weeks. No preparations were made for the accommodation of Vice-President Marshall in the Cabinet room today. The President and Secretary Tumulty smashed precedents by reaching their respective offices more than an hour ahead of the usual time. Mr. Tumulty said he had been accustomed to getting up at 5:45 while acting as secretary to the Governor of New Jersey. He was at work today at 7:30 o'clock, being alone in the White House offices until the arrival of the President an hour later.

Babies Named for President.

Six telegrams relating to births of babies on March 4, all of whom are named Woodrow Wilson, reached the White House. Another telegram which caused considerable amusement among White House employes came from an office seeker in Denver, Col., who stated that he had been "A life-long Republican," but added that he had voted three times for Bryan and once for Wilson.

Among the President's engagement for today were appointments with Senators Fletcher and Bryan of Florida and Johnston of Alabama, and former Senator Gardner of Maine. Senator Bankhead of Alabama, with a large party, and the Civil Service Commission, led by General John C. Black, also had an appointment to call on the chief executive.

Congratulated by Crowned Heads

Baron Uchida, the Japanese ambassador, will be received in the blue room at 3:30 o'clock to present the congratulations of the Mikado. Additional interest is attached to this meeting because of the presence of Frederick C. Penfield, who is retired to be ambassador to Japan.

Telegrams of congratulations from almost all the foreign governments reached the White House today. King George of England and Emperor William of Germany were among the first to cable their good wishes to the President.

All these cablegrams were sent to Secretary of State Bryan to be answered.

MELLEN RULE OF B. & M. IS CONDEMNED

The management of the Boston & Maine Railroad by the New Haven road was condemned "as bad business policy" by several speakers today at a meeting of the members of the Chamber of Commerce who held an all-day session at the Chamber of Commerce to discuss the railroad situation in New England.

Joseph B. Eastman of the Public Franchise League said the New Haven Railroad was out for monopoly at any cost. G. W. R. Hurriman, engineer of the Malden Improvement Association, declared that the New Haven road, in its management of the Boston & Maine, was "trying to make home runs with infield hits."

Mr. Eastman spoke for over an hour and flayed the New Haven road. He said: "The New Haven policy is in keeping with Morgan's methods. The road is bound to combine its properties regardless of costs and make the public carry the burden. The New Haven road promised New England much when it came into control of the Boston & Maine, but in spite of multitudes of complaints it has done nothing."

Wants Sweeping Investigation.

Mr. Eastman told of a contract that the Boston & Maine Railroad had with the American Express Company for ten years, and charged that when the New Haven road took control in 1907 it made a contract for twenty years without even letting the ten-year-old contract expire.

Mr. Harriman advocated the appointment of a public administrative commission with powers to investigate all railroads and the railroad situation in New England with authority to act after reporting to the Legislature.

Mr. Eastman advocated the State taking the Boston & Maine Railroad.

Charles H. Jones, president of the Commonwealth Shoe Company, said there was a crying need for regular steamship lines between Boston and Nova Scotia ports to expedite the shipment of hides and other raw material which played an important part in New England manufacture.

President Jones reviewed the history of the acquisition of the Boston & Maine Railroad by the New Haven Railroad, and declared that the New Haven had failed to keep its promises about developing the port of Boston and New England industries.

He said after the merger the New Haven told shippers it was its purpose to develop New England and to give the shippers better rates and facilities.

"The New Haven, added Mr. Jones," has never been able to advance a good reason for the consolidation of the new lines. The New Haven road has given very generous and alluring promises, but has failed utterly to carry them out.

Failed to Develop Port.

"The New Haven road has failed to develop the port of Boston as promised. For example, a regular line of steamships between the port of Boston and ports in Texas is sorely needed. The Mallory line used to have weekly sailings between here and Texas ports, but was forced to abandon them. A suspicion arose and it was later verified that the Mallory line's sailings were abandoned because of the influence and the interference of the New Haven railroad.

"Boston business men investigated and attempted to establish a regular steamship line between Boston and Texas ports to ship cattle and hides and raw material which are used in large quantities by New England manufacturers. After a careful investigation when the group of Boston business men in question attempted to raise the necessary capital it was not available. The reason was that financial interests had heard about the opposition of the New Haven Railroad.

President James J. Storrow opened the meeting by outlining the idea of gathering and hearing widely known speakers discuss New England's great problem. Bernard J. Rothwell, former president of the chamber, wanted a stenographic report of the arguments presented sent to every member before the chamber took action on the railroad situation. Mr. Rothwell said that the reason the attendance was small was because notices had not been sent in time.

BEGIN INQUIRY INTO INSULTS TO 'VOTES' WOMEN

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The investigation into the failure of the police to protect the suffrage parade began this afternoon.

At the instance of Senator Jones of Washington, head of the Senate sub-committee to make the inquiry, Major Sylvester, chief of police, the commissioners, responsible police heads, and various prominent suffragists were calls dto testify as to what occurred on Monday.

The sub-committee consists of Senator Jones, Dillingham and Pomerene. Continued complaints against the Washington police force for their failure to protect the suffragist marchers in the parade, March 3, reached the office of Representative Hobson of Alabama today.

Hobson has received the numbers of at least a dozen policemen who, it is alleged, permitted women marchers to be insulted and abused. In one case it is charged that an attempt was made to tear the flag of the Maryland delegation.

Representative Stephens of California, talked today about the outrageous misconduct of hoodlums and the failure of the police to handle the situation while the suffrage parade was on. Mr. Stephens and Mrs. Stephens took part in the parade. He said today that he had received many reports from friends as to insults offered to women along the line of march.

"The facts as to what occurred are much graver than many understand," said Mr. Stephens.

"UNCLE JOE" SAYS GOODBY TO CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, March 6. — Former Speaker Cannon superintended today the removal of his personal effects from his special room given to him in courtesy by the House because he had been its "boss" for years.

Standing under the chandelier that was formerly in the White House and under which President Cleveland stood when he was married to Miss Folsom, Mr. Cannon said goodby to his friends. Mr. Cannon will live at Danville, Ill., enjoying a rest he has not known in fifty years.

He has just sold his 400-acre farm near there for $100,000.

BABY M'LEAN TIRES OF HIS NEGRO CHUM

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Jack Johnson, the second, the five-year-old negro boy, who, for three halcyon weeks enjoyed life at Palm Beach as the playmate and chum of Vinson Walsh McLean, the $100,000,000 baby, is looking on the dark side of life again. When the McLean party arrived in town the other day Jack was sent home, consoled by some golden memories and a pocket full of money. His millionaire playmate decided he was as tired of Jack as he was of his other toys.

PLAN TO ENLARGE THE SUPREME COURT

WASHINGTON, March 6.—It became known today that certain Democratic leaders will attempt to increase the size of the United States Supreme Court. The court is now made up of eight Associate Justices and a Chief Justice. There is a feeling among some members of Congress that with a view to expediting the work of the court the personnel of the Supreme Court should be enlarged.

POLICEMAN'S HAND BITTEN IN STRIKE RIOT

today while distributing circulars calling for the general strike of the cloak and skirt makers. She was charged with violating the ordinance forbidding the distribution of circulars.

Morris Sigman of New York, international vice-president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, reached Boston today to take part in the direction of the strike. There are now the president, two vice-presidents and one organizer at work in Boston. The union is centring its efforts in the Boston struggle.

Call for the Strike.

The expected general strike is declared. Stop work at 10 a. m. sharp. All operators, finishers, dressers, cutters and buttonhole makers are requested to stop at 10 o'clock sharp and stay out until your demands for better conditions shall be fully granted.

Brothers and sisters, you are requested to leave your employment as quietly as possible. Pick no argument and enter into no discussions either with your employers or other employes. Don't give the police force of this city a chance to show their heroism by arresting or clubbing defenceless working people.

As soon as you leave the factories do not stop on the sidewalks, but go quietly to your headquarters, as directed below. Show the world that you are an organized, disciplined, well-behaved body which knows its duties and rights. Remember, a great deal of success in your present struggle depends upon your orderly conduct during the time you are compelled to remain out. Be loyal to your union, to the cause you are struggling for, and a speedy victory is assured.

General Organizer Coming.

The strike order was the result of a meeting of the executive committee at the North Russell street headquarters. It will be under the general control of President Rosenberg and Vice-President Mitchell of the International Garment Workers' Union.

General Organizer Gertrude Barnum, daughter of Judge Barnum of Chicago, was expected in from Boston today to take an active part in the strike.

HARVARD READY WITH WELCOME TO FRIEDMANN

"If Dr. Friedmann should come forward with a proposition to demonstrate his claims before the Harvard Medical School his request would be placed before the department, and I do not doubt that he would be given every reasonable opportunity to get a hearing before the school," said Dr. Edward H. Bradford, Dean of the Harvard Medical School today.

"But if he is in America simply for advertisement and self-advancement, he would receive no recognition, I am sure, officially, we know nothing about Dr. Friedmann's claims except what we have read in the newspapers.

"If he has any bona fide anything worth while, he should place it before the profession, in the proper spirit. The public must be protected at all costs, and that is the reason for the regulations which control the practice of medicine.

Tells Distinction.

"To be sure, one-half of the discoveries in the science of medicine may be said to have come from advertisers, but it is the other half who might do the damage. We can never allow a man to work along those lines, and give him legal recognition.

"If he wants to demonstrate before the brotherhood of the profession, and prove what his discovery is worth, I feel that we would be glad to hear him. If he comes simply to treat patients, he will have to pass the State Board of Medicine just as any regular physician.

"His case is different from that of Dr. Lorenz. Dr. Lorenz is an older man, and was already recognized. He applied to the proper authorities, and was not allowed to practice without permission. He came over to demonstrate his methods of working, and was allowed in every State, practically, to conduct his demonstrations before clinics of physicians and surgeons."

Dr. Friedmann would undoubtedly be allowed to demonstrate his cure before the medical profession, as was Dr. Lorenz of Vienna, in 1906, when he came to Boston and demonstrated his cure for hip disease in Boston Hospital," said Dr. Francis X. Maloney, chairman of the Boston Board of Health, today. "But that would not be considered practising. In order to practice here, Dr. Friedmann would have to go before the State Board of Medicine and receive their permission, which they are allowed to grant to any man to whom they see fit."

What Richardson Says.

Dr. Mark Richardson, secretary of the Massachusetts State Board of Health, said that Dr. Friedmann had not been given serious consideration by him, and that his board had no control over any hospital and no jurisdiction over any medical board.

Dr. Friedmann, he said, would not be allowed to practice without permission from the medical board, and if he desired to demonstrate in a hospital, would have to apply to the board of trustees of the institution.

MANY CREEDS IN THE CABINET OF MR. WILSON

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—A Presbyterian elder in the White House; a Presbyterian in the Vice-President's chair; a Presbyterian elder as Prime Minister in the Department of State! Perhaps something has been "predestined" for the "elected" administration "from the foundation of the world."

Nearly every religious creed is represented in the Cabinet; an Episcopalian among the treasury vaults, a Methodist class leader in the navy, a Baptist in the postoffice and a Catholic at the private desk of the Chief Executive.

The last President was a Unitarian, but things were not noticeably united under Taft. The President before the last was of the Dutch Reformed, but there was much left to be reformed after Roosevelt. It remains to be seen what the stern orthodoxy of the Calvinist will accomplish.

It is safe to say the "turkey trot" will not be a feature of White House dances for the next four years.

WIFE PLANNED TO SHOOT ME, SAYS DE BELLE

James De Belle, husband of Mrs. Sarah De Belle, who threatened to shoot Probate Judge George for depriving her of the custody of her ten-year-old boy, Frederic, said today that he thought his wife intended to "get" him, and that shooting Judge George was probably a "secondary consideration" with her. De Belle said his wife is not crazy.

Again he said: "My wife wanted her own way in everything and with everybody. I stood it as long as I could."

De Belle is in lodgings at No. 40 Temple street, West End. He is a cigarmaker. He said today:

I was not surprised in the least to hear about what my wife had done.

I am sorry for poor Judge George because he was the innocent one in the whole case. But I think he was of only secondary consideration, so far as shooting was concerned. I think she meant to get me. She thought I would be in the court room. But as it happened I did not put in an appearance.

She may be crazy, but I don't think so. She isn't any more crazy than I am.

My wife wanted her own way in everything and with everyone. I stood it as long as I could and then put my foot down on it. I lived with her in 1901 and 1902. I left her, but went back to live with her on Feb. 3, 1912. On May 22 I again left her. Since then I have had seven different cases in court with her. This last trouble grew out of an automobile accident in which my boy figured.

So far as the little boy goes, I don't wish to say anything. He is now getting the best of care in a private family thirty minutes' ride from Boston. I am working in cooperation with the Children's Aid Society and cannot tell his location at present.

What I shall do for his education and future bringing up I will determine after the court proceedings are definitely settled.

Mrs. de Belle is at the Boston Psychopathic Hospital, where she is being examined by alienists. They have reached no conclusion as to her exact condition.

Actress Tells Secret

A Well Known Actress Tells How She Darkened Her Gray Hair and Promoted Its Growth With a Simple Home-Made Mixture.

Miss Blanche Rose, a well-known actress, who darkened her gray hair with a simple preparation which she mixed at home, in a recent interview at Chicago, Ill., made the following statement: "Any lady or gentleman can darken their gray hair and make it soft and glossy with this simple recipe, which they can mix at home. To a half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the required shade. This will make a gray-haired person look 20 years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of hair, relieves itching and scalp humors and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair."—Advertisement.

SEEK FATHER OF 3, MISSING 4 MONTHS

Mrs. James McTigue and her three children, the oldest seven and the youngest an infant, are at their home, No. 84 Mt. Vernon street, Dorchester, anxiously awaiting news of the whereabouts of the husband and father, who left home to work in a stained glass window concern on Sudbury street, Boston, on November 5. He was sent to Fitzfield to do a week's work, but was there two days when he dropped out of sight. He has not been heard from since.

MISS M'DONALD BLAMES RIVAL FROM THE WEST

A trip to Europe and a bundle of love letters will figure in the testimony of Miss Sarah A. McDonald when she takes the stand in her $75,000 breach of promise suit against her former employer and alleged fiancé, Frank A. Messenger of Beacon street. Miss McDonald claims a Western woman robbed her of Messenger's affections.

Mr. Messenger is one of the biggest importers of woolen fabrics in the country. He is at present living in apartments in the Hotel Invernees. He is forty and a widower. Miss McDonald, who worked for him ten years as stenographer and later as confidential clerk, is a pretty brunette of twenty-eight.

Her suit was entered yesterday in the Suffolk Superior Court by Attorney William Flaherty, No. 17 Milk street. She is a native of Maine. She hurried home today to escape publicity. She has apartments in the Hotel Oxford. The suite which Messenger now occupies in the Beacon street hotel was the one in which Miss McDonald claims they selected as their home after marriage.

Attaches Bank Account.

Attorney Flaherty today brought a trustee attachment against Messenger's account at the Shawmut National Bank. Messenger is agent for woolen exporters in London, Berlin and Vienna. He makes frequent trips abroad.

Here is Miss McDonald's story of how she happened to sue Mr. Messenger:

"I met Mr. Messenger ten years ago, when I entered his employment as stenographer. Later I became his confidential clerk at the time he was married. His wife's maiden name was Foster, Mrs. Messenger died in September, 1911.

"Naturally, my duties brought me in close touch with Mr. Messenger. In the Fall and Winter of 1912 he became very attentive to me. He visited me often and wrote me letters, which I have turned over to my attorney.

Tells of Proposal.

"He finally asked me to marry him. He gave me a ring to seal the plight and later he gave me several other rings.

"I loved him as passionately and devotedly as any woman could love a man. We talked over our domestic plans. I was overjoyed. We looked up apartments (the ones he now occupies in the Hotel Invernees on Beacon street), and we looked for dainty furniture.

The letters he wrote professed his love for me in the most endearing terms. I was careful to keep those letters.

"We were happy until another woman entered Mr. Messenger's life. She came from the West, and shortly after our arrival his feelings for me seemed to change. He didn't appear so interested and so affectionate. He called less frequently and his letters ceased.

"It was this woman who alienated his affections. If it hadn't been for her everything would be as we planned."

$400,000 Folsom Will Jury Unable to Reach Verdict

A Norfolk Superior Court jury was dismissed at Dedham this noon after vainly trying for twenty-two hours and twenty minutes to come to an agreement on the $400,000 Folsom will case.

The jury agreed on the third issue, that the will was the last one ever made by the testator, Mrs. Julia Folsom of Brookline.

But the jury was unable to agree on the two first issues, of alleged undue influence and of Mrs. Folsom's mental state. The case went to the jury at 2.55 p. m. yesterday. They stood eight to four.

Mrs. Folsom left her fortune equally between her two sons, Chandler R. and Francis B. W. Folsom of Brookline, and her two daughters, Mrs. Mary Dexter, wife of Alvin S. Dexter of Brookline, and Mrs. Julia E. Barrell, wife of Dr. Charles S. Barrell of Beacon street, Boston.

But the sons' shares were left in trust, the sons to enjoy the income for life. At the death of the sons their shares were to go to the daughter's children. Thus the sons' wives would not benefit.

The sons entered contest on behalf of themselves and their wives to have their shares left direct.

RECALL WRIT; THAW BACK TO MATTEAWAN

NEW YORK, March 6.—At the request of Harry K. Thaw's own counsel, Henry Hirschberg, the habeas corpus writ on which Thaw was brought to this city today from Matteawan was withdrawn before Justice Gisgerich in the Supreme Court.

Mr. Hirschberg said he had not had time to familiarize himself with the case and that his associate counsel, Dr. Kennedy, who obtained the writ wished to consult with Harry Thaw's mother.

Justice Gisgerich granted the motion to withdraw the writ and Thaw left immediately to return to the Matteawan Insane Asylum.

Soon after his arrival Thaw gave the following signed statement to a correspondent of the National News Association.

When Dr. Kennedy visited me Monday we were unable to consult, as the acting superintendent was present, so we talked with him. He replied at first, but in a minute he said he could not answer any questions and stood speechless all of the time we remained. In a good humored way Dr. Kennedy or I suggested that it looked as though he (Dr. Leak) had become disturbed or suffered from some nervous trouble which would indicate that he (Dr. Leak) was constitutionally inferior. This was like a joke. I didn't say, nor intimate in any way that he (Dr. Leak) was insane.

FOG HOLDS SHIPS DOWN THE HARBOR

Only one vessel, the British tramp steamer, Carisbrook, from Preston, Cuba, with sugar, came up the harbor today through the fog. She narrowly missed a collision with two schooners, a five master and a four master, anchored together on the edge of the channel off the East Boston flats.

The fog held a large fleet down the harbor. Among them are the Red Star liner, Marquette from Antwerp with passengers and the Dominion Atlantic liner Boston, from Yarmouth.

BROTHERS OF MADERO CALL ARMED REVOLT

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 6.—A call to arms in Northern Mexico was sounded here today by Raoul and Emilio Madero, brothers of the slain Mexican President, Francisco I. Madero, Jr., who declare they will not rest until the government headed by Provisional President Huerta and General Felix Diaz is overturned.

Emilio Madero, who came into San Antonio after having officially been reported dead both from Mexico City and Washington, declared at the Hutchings Hotel, where the brothers are stopping, that the Madero family would spend all of its vast fortune if necessary to restoring itself to its legal power in the southern republic.

The brothers, who arrived here accompanied by three servants after a perilous horseback ride of 600 miles from Torreon, held several conferences with Maderist leaders, who are at war against the Mexican government in the northern States. Emilio and Raoul were met here by another brother, Gabriel, but Emilio seems to be the leader.

"We have decided to fight" said Emilio, "although that decision may be affected by the conference of other members of the family which will be held in New York. Personally I am in favor of spending every penny of our millions to overthrow the illegal government of Huerta and Diaz. General Carranza has 10,000 well armed troops in Coahuila and we have large following in Sonora and Chihuahua. My dead brother, Francisco I. Madero, Jr., has many followers who will spring to arms."

It is understood that a Maderist junta is being established here. The Maderos entertained their callers today with stories of their escape from Mexico.

"We were fired upon three times," said Raoul, "and if it had not been for our three servants, who knew all the mountain trails, we would have been captured or killed by bandits. Twice we fought running fights with bandits, but eluded them. Once we were fired upon by federal soldiers when we refused to stop at their challenge."

"L" SIGNALMEN GET OWN CHARTER

The signalmen of the Elevated road who have been for some time connected with the New Haven Local Pioneer No. 5, have severed their connection with that local and have branched out for themselves with their own a charter under their own name, Progress Local No. 36, Brotherhood Railroad Signalmen of America. The following officers were installed: Chief Signalman, H. W. Hart; first vice-ch ef, A. L. Short; second vice-chief, C. B. Yale; recording secretary, J. P. Murphy; financial secretary, C. A. Goodwin; treasurer, O. Handley; chaplain, F. Decarre.

MISS EVA McADOO, daughter of William G. McAdoo, the Secretary of the Treasury, is slated to be the reigning beauty of the Cabinet set. She was born in Dixie, but has lived for many years in New York.

CAPITAL BELLES HAVE NEW RIVAL IN MISS M'ADOO

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The new Secretary of the Treasury is in danger of being known to Washington—among the younger set at least—as "The father of the beautiful Miss McAdoo," so deeply have his daughter's beauty and charm impressed everyone.

Miss McAdoo is in mourning. Her mother, who was formerly Sarah Houston Fleming of the Chattanooga Flemings, died recently. But the sombre garb which Miss McAdoo is now wearing serves rather to heighten her beauty and to bring out more clearly the regularity of her features and the deep blue of her eyes.

Miss McAdoo is a charming combination of the North and South because she was born in Dixie but has lived sharly all her life in New York city, where her father has achieved his conspicuous success.

It is expected that Miss McAdoo will be the feminine head of her father's house in Washington. Her friends say that few, if any girls, are better qualified than she to play the role of hostess. The Southern spirit of hospitality is born in her. To this is added the finish that life in the metropolis gives.

At the inauguration it was noticed that Miss McAdoo received a large share of masculine attention. Her father was asked again and again for introductions to his prepossessing daughter by young men of the political and diplomatic set.

As soon as the period of mourning is over for the Secretary's family, it is probable that Miss McAdoo will take her place in the manifold social activities to which she will naturally be called.

CHANLER PRIZE BULL HURLS MAN IN TREE

POUGHKEEPSIE, March 6.—Not since "Bob" Chanler was elected sheriff of Dutchess County has the Red Hook district had so much excitement as when Chanler's prize bull went on a rampage. Before the bull was killed with a rifle ball by Deputy Sheriff "Bee" Horton, it loosed a man into a tree, gave battle to "Gus" Quick's automobile, and had the run of Barrytown Corners for nearly an hour.

DEMAND ON THE BRAIN IS MUCH TOO EXACTING

"The daily program, which scientists have mapped out for both men and women, is to divide the day into three portions: Eight hours for work, eight hours for play and eight hours for sleep," said John Beazley Wepp, who is assisting in the introduction of Tona Vita.

"But the modern mode of living has put too heavy a burden on the brain and nerves. Consequently the brain refuses the body the rest that it craves for. Control over the various organs of the body, such as the stomach, liver and kidneys, is lost, and symptoms of nervous trouble will show in the weakest of the organs.

"The only cure for this condition that was known formerly was a long rest close to nature with careful attention to diet. Most people cannot see their way clear to spend either time or money to accomplish this end, and it is to these people that I particularly recommend the new tonic, Tona Vita, which is being handled in Boston by all druggists.

"Among the commonest symptoms of nervous debility anr of the following may denote the presence of the ailment: Dull pains in the back; sick headache; being tired after the slightest exertion; loss of vigor and ambition; morbid imagination; depression of spirits and that general run-down feeling."

CITY SUES RISING SUN LIGHTING CO FOR TAXES OF 1912

City Collector Bowdoin S. Parker today filed a suit ags nst the Rising Sun Electric Lighting Company, seeking to recover $1,162 personal taxes which it is alleged the company owes the city for the year 1912. In his bill Collector Parker states that he has made demands upon the Rising Sun Company, but that the concern has refused to pay the tax bill. The Rising Sun Street Lighting Company is under contract with Boston to furnish street lamps and other appliances for lighting the city streets.

"BEN" GIBBY FELL DOWN ON THE MAT AND HE WANTS $5,000

Ben F. Gibby, the lobbyist, wants $5,000 for tripping over a wire mat. He was coming out of the building at No. 102 Milk street. He claims the mat was defective, catching his heel and tossing him violently to the floor. He hurt his arm and shoulder and suffered "divers other injuries." He entered suit today in the Suffolk Superior Court against former Secretary of the Navy John D. Long, Henry E. Converse, Moorfield Storey and Frank H. Benuk, trustees of the building, which belongs to the estate of the late Elijah Converse of Malden.

The Roxbury Piano Storage Salesrooms Co. is cutting and slashing piano prices—saving the piano-buying public from one to two hundred dollars on the best pianos.

Continuing tomorrow, at 8 a. m. sharp, 129 new and slightly used upright pianos—the balance of the Feb. clearance sale—must be sold at any price and at terms to suit customer. A great number of these pianos have been sent in by different unlucky piano dealers who are driven to the wall by the big Piano Trust and forced to turn over their stock to us at from 20c. to 40c. on the dollar. Sale continues until every piano on the sacrifice floor is disposed of.

Young Wiener Gets His Ph. D. at Harvard at Age of Eighteen

The last act in perhaps the most remarkable college career in the United States is taking place now when Norbert Wiener, son of Professor Wiener of Harvard, takes his degree of Doctor of Philosophy at the age of eighteen. Young Wiener was the boy who entered Tufts College at seven, graduated from that school when he was fourteen, and entered Harvard the year following. Last June he was awarded the degree of Master of Arts, with high distinction. He will be the youngest man ever to receive the degree of Doctor of Philosophy at Harvard.

This year he is taking the degree of Doctor of Philosophy after the most remarkable achievements in philosophy and psychology that have been seen at Harvard for some time. He is planning to teach.

DEAN MARQUIS IS CATHEDRAL SPEAKER

"The reason why so many sermons are so convincing," said Dean Marquis of Detroit, in h s moonday address at St. Paul's cathedral today, "is because they come from men who themselves are not convinced of the truth of the things they are saying. Such sermons may be logical enough, and the authors of them may be giving intellectual assent to the truth they are uttering, but they do no know from experience the truth of the thing they are talking about."

Strange Gloom in Connecticut Valley With Snow Storm

SPRINGFIELD, March 6.—A "Black Thursday" fell over Springfield today. Much of the Connecticut valley was s dark at 10:30 as it ordinarily is at 7 o'clock in the evening. A snow storm, beginning afrtally, but with increasing winds, rose to nearly blizzard proportions by 11 o'clock.

The morning was cloudy up to 8 o'clock. With the first fall of snow the sun was obscured, the skies were overcast and the light faded until trolley searchlights, automobile lamps, store lights, illuminated street signs and even private house lights were all turned on to facilitate business and the routine of ordinary life.

Traffic along Main street moved cautiously to avoid accidents.

Reports of midday darkness came from as far as Northampton.

Though the snow and wind increased the temperature did not fall, remaining at about 45 degrees.

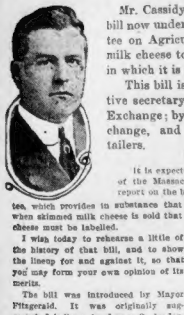
HONESTY DEMANDS SKIM MILK CHEESE BILL BE PASSED, SAYS CASSIDY



Mr. Cassidy today adds a final word upon the bill now under consideration by the Joint Committee on Agriculture, requiring persons selling skim milk cheese to label the cheese and the package in which it is sold.

This bill is opposed by Alton E. Briggs, executive secretary of the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange; by President Alfred P. Lee of that exchange, and by cheese manufacturers and retailers.

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

It is expected that the Joint Committee on Agriculture of the Massachusetts Legislature will shortly send in a report on the bill now under consideration by that committee, which provides in substance that when skimmed milk cheese is sold that cheese must be labelled.

I wish today to rehearse a little of the history of that bill, and to show the lineup for and against it, so that you may form your own opinion of its merits.

The bill was introduced by Mayor Fitzgerald. It was originally suggested, I believe, by James O. Jordan, the city milk inspector for many years past. Corporation Counsel Joseph J. Corbett of the city of Boston conducted the arguments in favor of the bill.

The bill provides a fifty per cent. butter fat standard for cheese. That means that of all the solids in the cheese, fifty per cent. must be butter fat, if the cheese is sold as cream cheese.

If cheese is made of skim milk, it will fall below that mark; while if it is made of whole milk, it will be safely above the 50 per cent. figure, according to Mr. Jordan.

Real Point of the Bill.

The 50 per cent. standard is technical and is not the real point of the bill. The real point of the bill is that when skim milk cheese is sold it must be labelled. The object of the bill is to prevent any retailer from selling skim milk cheese, worth say seventeen cents as cream cheese, worth about twenty-two or four cents a pound.

In short, the bill is designed to prevent fraud, and to force honesty upon dishonest retailers of cheese.

It is difficult to see, since this is the case, why any one should oppose the bill except from selfish reasons.

Yet Mr. Alton E. Briggs and Mr. Alfred P. Lee led a spirited opposition to the bill.

They urged their cause, however, with such quibbling and weightless arguments that the committee did not seem overfavorably impressed.

One argument upon which Mr. Briggs laid weight, for instance, was that when a man buys skim milk cheese he doesn't want it labelled, because as he carries it home his neighbors may see that he has bought skim milk cheese and may ridicule him.

After their arguments were overthrown by the questioning of the committee, the question was finally left something like this:

The Fruit and Produce men were invited to present a substitute bill, or a brief against the present bill, with some suggestion for legislation that would serve to protect the consumer from the cheating retailer, and that would at the same time work unnecessary hardship upon the retailer.

Records Tell the Story.

I understand that the forces led by Mr. Briggs have presented such a bill, basing their arguments upon the claim that while the national food laws makes just the requirement which this proposed law would make, the national authorities have agreed not to enforce the law.

Such a claim is, I believe, contrary to the facts. I do not believe in any of this. I can only refer the doubter to the records of the Federal Food Department. He will find, for instance, that New York cheese manufacturers shipping skim milk cheese into Massachusetts are required to label that cheese for what it is.

This law is enforced. The result and effect of this law is to protect the Massachusetts retailers. When they buy a skim milk cheese they can be sure by a glance at the label whether or not that is a skim milk cheese.

If they buy from a jobber here, and he has removed the "skim milk cheese" label, that jobber would be liable to a penalty under the law which is proposed in the present bill now before the Joint Committee.

In other words, as the situation now narrows itself down, the retailer has, or can get adequate protection under existing laws, and one thing he is buying whole cream cheese, or can find that he is getting skim milk cheese.

The disposition of the retailers to the present cheese menace would be that they are fighting a law which would force them to pass along the knowledge which they already have, or which is in their power to get, to their customers.

It is inconceivable to me that the retailers can honestly take this stand. If the retailer doesn't know, I believe he should be forced to find out.

The cheese bill should be favorably reported and should pass.

A Physician's Faith in Eckman's Alterative

A Valuable Remedy for Throat and Lungs

"Have used Eckman's Alterative in several cases of tubercular bleed of the lungs, with excellent results every time. In one case in particular $50. for the child was put up, but until she could arrange to be operated, and in a short time an operation was not needed. I suppose your records are just as fine as of old, for it certainly is a fine thing."

(Original of this physician's letter on file.)

Eckman's Alterative is effective in other forms. Read what Mrs. Garvin says:

Idaho Falls, Idaho.

"Gentlemen: I have gained twenty-two pounds since last February and my baby is to be three months old tomorrow. Before he was born he was one bunch of nerves, and now doing all my work, have been over since was four weeks old, and I am not nervous. I do not cough or raise anything at all. I believe my lung trouble is cured."

(Sworn affidavit) MRS. M. H. GARVIN.

Note—Mrs. Garvin says her children.

Eckman's Alterative proves its merits in Bronchitis, Asthma, Severe Throat Troubles, and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain poisons, opiates or habit-forming drugs. For sale by all Riker-Jarnes stores, Liggett-Drug & Dutton Drug Dept. and other leading drug stores. Ask for booklet telling of recoveries, or write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for additional evidence.

WOULD DRIVE MORMONS OUT OF BAY STATE

Charles H. Pratt, of No. 22 Tremont Street, Chelsea, wants the Mormon elders banished from Massachusetts.

With others, he has petitioned, he says, from the methods of these elders and the best way, in his opinion, to combat the evil is to have it abolished by State authority. Mr. Pratt, a Justice of the Peace, said:

I protest against the methods of these Mormon elders and their teachings.

No right minded person wants our State tainted with this sort of teaching. Suppose they do not teach polygamy, there is enough to their system to prove that it is iniquitous.

There are people around who are simple enough and unintelligent, who can be swayed by these elders and accept what they say, until they find themselves in the Mormon trap and unable to break away from it.

Belief Contrary to Law.

Mormonism is contrary to the laws of Massachusetts. The Mormons believe in polygamy and other things which are against the purity and sanctity of the home life.

These Mormons are not here for any good purpose. They know it. They are working among the young to get them converted, and then send the news to Independence, Mo., where "Liahons, the Elders' Journal," is published.

I will do all in my power to help banish them from this State.

Let us have a clean city and not have those elders going around, saying they believe in polygamy but do not teach it.

They ought to be driven from their meeting place at No. 200 Huntington avenue. Every parent should raise his hands against them. They have broken up sever l homes already. They will try to break up more. They are the darkest blot upon our city life today.

Mass Meeting Planned.

It is a shame to have them around here trying to prove that their ancestors came over in the Mayflower. They will say anything to get a hold. Let us go to the hall and tell how we feel about their presence.

Other citizens are interested with Mr. Pratt and will do their part to prevent the holding of morning meetings in Boston until such time as the Mormons give clear evidence that their teachings are not against morality of the State.

A meeting will soon be called to make this protest in one of the halls at Huntington Chambers.

Many New Entries for Prizes in Big Slang Contest

Quelques amis et moi nous allons prendre le (Conte cher) au restaurant.

Well, the Slang Editor knew he could get you guessing this time. The above is French slang and it comes from John Vezina, No. 18 Front street, East Sherbrooke, Quebec, Canada. Quite classy expression had the Slang Editor guessing himself until he hunted up somebody who understands the French language.

Here it is: "Some friend and I are going to have 'High Cost' at the restaurant." You haven't got it yet? "High Cost" is a slang synonym for dinner and in these days of the high cost of living it is an appropriate, although hardly a practical addition to the slang language.

The AMERICAN'S Canadian friend asks that the Slang Editor remit by wireless the $5 prize, offered for the best slang word or expression sent in. The Slang Editor will have to read about four million more entries before he can decide whether Mr. Vezina has won the prize.

"It looks like language is becoming 'Slanguage,'" writes Ernest Gordon, No. 18 Arlington street, Chelsea. The Slang Man agrees with Mr. Gordon.

"Quit your tinkle I'm no telephone belle," comes from Ima Bird and Ura Bird, Boston twins.

The Slang man fears that somebody is trying to joke with him.

"Get off the line (telephone) this is wash day," writes J. A. McClellan, No. 434 Bennington street, Boston.

"Make a noise like a jackknife and shut up," is the entry from Lawrence Harris, No. 21 Holbrook street, Jamaica Plain.

"Ship yourself by freight you cannot express," is from Maurice M. Gould, No. 59 Shawmut avenue, Boston.

"You think you're the belle but you don't ring it," suggests Marion T. Marden, No. 15 Central avenue, Revere.

"Don't think you are a deer (dear just because you have a little doe (dough)," writes Miss Ruth Graham, No. 47 Gates street, South Boston.

"Don't bother me, I doing nothing." This from Leo Mosley, No. 19 Geller street, Roxbury.

Watch for more Slang Contest entries in tomorrow's AMERICAN.

CHILDREN NEED "CASCARETS" WHEN CROSS, FEVERISH OR CONSTIPATED

CASCARETS WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

LYDIA LOCKE, the opera singer, whom Orville Harrold married "to match his position," and her husband, whom Oscar Hammerstein discovered in vaudeville and took to London.

WIFE MUST BE IN SAME CIRCLE, SAYS HARROLD

NEW YORK, March 6.—Orville Harrold, the Hoosier tenor, whom Oscar Hammerstein plucked from the vaudeville stage and transplanted into grand opera, declares that a man must have a wife to match his position.

Having been divorced by the wife of his grocery wagon-driving days out in Indiana and married to Lydia Locke—Lady Talbott—the American girl who shared with Harrold the uncertain fortunes of Oscar Hammerstein's London opera season, Harrold declares it is high time that he disabuse the minds of the public as to the morals of the artistic folk of his sphere. He declares:

It was while working for that grocer that my matrimonial troubles began. My wife began to accuse me of flirting with housewives and spending too much time around the local opera house. I was married at eighteen, by the way. My wife constantly berated me for stopping too long in the houses to which I delivered groceries.

I took up the study of the violin under the village bandmaster. Soon after Alex Ernestinoff of Indianapolis heard me sing and took me into his orchestra. Never once did my wife encourage me. She tried to block my progress and when I decided to come to New York opposed me.

While I was studying in New York I gave her an opportunity to perfect herself. I asked some of the best women in Muncie, Ind., to take my wife up and educate her into their little circle. They offered their society to her, but she would have none of it.

However, she is free now to marry another grocery clerk—it matters not to me.

My marriage to Lydia Locke—Lady Talbott—is one of the greatest things in my life. Lydia is of intellectual assistance to me. She possesses an amiable and loving disposition.

BLANCHART IN FIFTH ROLE IN AS MANY DAYS

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

The first subscription performances of "Rigoletto" occurred at the Opera last night with a tenor and soprano from the Metropolitan. Amato, the baritone, was also announced, but his appearance was cancelled early in the week and Rossi substituted. Rossi is still ill, so the faithful Blanchart sang the title role in his place.

It was the fifth successive performance at which Blanchart officiated and he actually sang better last night than at any time this season.

We have had so many splendid performances of "Rigoletto" in Boston that last night's performance was something of a disappointment. I remember pleasantly a "Rigoletto" with Constantino, Alice Nielsen and Baklanoff, several with Lipkowska, Baklanoff and Constantino, and numerous "Rigolettos" by the Metropolitan and Hammerstein companies with distinguished casts.

Lucrezia Bori is a fine actress and a lyric soprano of rare attainments, but she should not attempt coloratura roles in Boston unless high Es are expected. She was unable to take the E at the end of "Caro Nome" which Tetrazzini and Scotney (and very easy, ain't which we have come to demand, although it is not required by the opera.

There were other faults with Bori's colorature. It was not brilliant enough, and her technique was not flawless. Histrionically, she was very capable.

Umberto MacNes is billed as an Italian tenor, despite his Scottish name. He is a tall, lanky person with a nose that is more Gaelic than Latin in its contour. He is the leading lyric tenor at the Metropolitan this season, appearing in all the old operas, which Caruso seems to have abandoned for good.

Nevertheless, we cannot admit MacNes to the ranks of great lyric tenors on his showing last night. His voice is pleasant, of good range and volume, lyric in quality, but with little of the glowing beauty that distinguished Constantino and Bonci or the sweetness of John McCormack.

His phrasing last night was injudicious, producing cloudy tones at times. On the whole an acceptable tenor, certainly more satisfying than some who have been favoring us this season, and not yet a tenor to drive the gallery mad.

Blanchart deserves great credit for his action, which is old school like the opera, but forceful and coherent. His power in hard work seems to have tuned him up so that his singing was for the most part excellent.

Firemen Release Little 'Jack Horner' in School Corner

Firemen were called to release twelve-year-old Vincent McDonald after he had fallen into a space between a partition and the wall at the Centre street public school, Roslindale. He was an involuntary Little Jack Horner for an hour.

In trying to open a window he stepped upon a wall and fell between that and the wall of the room.

He tried to get out, but he was held fast and had to await the arrival of some men who knew how to cope with such a plight. The teachers and janitor were notified, but their efforts to release him were vain. Finally firemen chopped away part of the wall. The boy was badly frightened and one foot was lacerated.

CLARK WOULD HANG POMEROY PORTRAIT

At the request of a Boston grandson of Theodore M. Pomeroy, former Representative from New York, who closed his Congressional career in March, 1895, as Speaker of the House for a day, Speaker Clark has recorded himself in favor of hanging the latter's portrait with the gallery of Speakers in the rear lobby of the House, providing the Library Committee of the House would sanction the appropriation of $500 for making the portrait.

GLEE IN BOSTON PORT OVER GOOD SHIP 'PINAFORE'

Trim and staunch as when launched many years ago by Gilbert and Sullivan, the good ship "Pinafore" visited the port of Boston yesterday after many cruises to every harbor of the world. As many people as the big Majestic Theatre would hold, crowded to hail her gallant captain, his lovely daughter, and the merry crew. It was a glad reunion for all, and not until the old songs had been sung over and over again, and the cheers renewed heartily and often, did "H. M. S. Pinafore" leave for another port of dreams, fond memories awakened and renewed and reassured.

Commanding the ship in the guise of Captain Corcoran was George J. MacFarlane, and right well his voice and manner pleased his throng of guests. Josephine, the lass loved by a sailor and courted by Sir Joseph Porter, ruler of the King's navee (Queen's, when the "Pinafore" first breasted the waves), was in reality Blanche Duffield, as wholesome and satisfying a daughter as ever captain could give away in marriage.

Sir Joseph confessed to the birth name of Arthur Cunningham, and a fine figure he made, with a voice as well turned as his shapely form.

Hidden away as Bill Bobstay among the crew, where he could never stay hidden, was the old friend of Bostonians' days, Eugene Cowles. And the fine and favorite tenor tones of Arthur Aldridge exposed the personality of the lover masquerading as Ralph Rackstraw.

Louise Barthel as Hebe led the "sisters, cousins and aunts" in style satisfactorily patrician, and the inimitable Little Buttercup was Viola Gillette.

Disguise himself as he might, DeWolf Hopper never could convince anyone that he was anybody save he, even with the scarecrow counterfeit of Dick Deadeye. It was in full work to keep one optic obscured through two long public receptions, but with only one eye Hopper proved himself more surprising a comedian in the role of a comic sailor than many an aspiring landlubber with two.

And in the merry crew sailed into the port of the hearts of Boston people, and sailed away again. And tonight those who missed the music and the fun may gather at the Majestic Theatre dock and possess their souls in "Patience"—a sister ship that has lifted many a cup.

SOMERVILLE'S CITY FIGHT IS GETTING HOTTER

The Somerville Republican City Committee, through its executive committee, has taken issue with the Republican Mayor, Charles A. Burns, on many of his official actions since he was elected, and proposes to adopt radical measures to control the city government over the Mayor's head.

Any appointment which may be made by Mayor Burns will be fought if the nominee does not meet the approval of the executive committee, and any proposition to increase salaries in City Hall.

Miss Harrison Back After Dodging the Pujo Committee

NEW YORK, March 6.—After a voluntary exile of two months, Miss Katherine L. Harrison, who for a quarter of a century was secretary and confidential adviser to H. H. Rogers, has returned to her home at No. 1334 Dean street, Brooklyn. Miss Harrison fled to Canada to avoid appearing before the Pujo committee to give testimony regarding the ramifications of her deceased Standard Oil employer with the "Money Trust."

Miss Harrison's return was practically simultaneous with the cessation of the activities of the Congressional committee.

It is said "the oracle," as Miss Harrison was known in Wall Street, spent most of her eight weeks' exile at the Hotel Frontenac, in Quebec. She refused today to give any explanation of her sudden flight.

Over 200 People Quit Drinking

A Whole Locality Changed by Movement to Eradicate Drink Habit.

In St. Jerome, Quebec, it has been learned, over two hundred people, who had been habitual drinkers, have been cured of this frightful curse. This fact came to public notice through W. H. Scott, Postmaster of that place, who has been actively interested in bettering conditions there. Mr. Scott recently made affidavit to the wonderful work done by Renova, the remedy that rescued these two hundred people. Renova is the treatment being adopted by wives and mothers everywhere to save their husbands and sons from drunkards' graves; that enables men to come home with full pay envelopes; so that can be given secretly. Get a package of Renova at Riker-Jay's if you have a dear one who needs help to fight his battle. He will know he is taking it, for it's tasteless and absolutely harmless. Guaranteed to do the drinker good or get your money back.

If you'd like to try it—free—before you buy a whole package, write in confidence to Renova Co., 294 Renovator, New York, for a sample and proofs of what Renova does for victims of intemperance.

MARCH SALE OF "SMALL WARES"

"SMALL WARES" is a homely, old-fashioned term that survives. It brings up a picture of the erstwhile neighborhood "Notion Store" that formerly thrived supplying our little personal and domestic needs. Few of them are left. The rising tide of a braver economic principle left them stranded on the sands of old-fogyism.

Universality is the keynote of the modern store.

An aggregation of interests lessens the price of each individual item. Centralization creates money-saving chances. The specialist is always exorbitant.

SMALL WARES—sewing requisites—are almost exhaustless in variety. Nothing short of organization, approaching military precision, can compass the assortment completely. We have come very close to succeeding.

The MARCH SALE includes unbroken arrays of new, fresh, standard qualities. It is timed to occur when women are in greatest need of the things involved.

Fill your sewing basket.

Just a word to dressmakers. No, what's the use? They buy with judgment. That's why they are our steady customers.

FRESNO DAN IN SHARP ENCOUNTER WITH WOMAN FRIENDS OF DAKOTA DAN

How Fresno Dan, the officially recognized claimant in the famous Russell will case, was attacked and had a hand-to-hand fight with women sympathizers of Dakota Dan, the rival claimant, became known today for the first time. The trouble took place outside of the Suffolk County courthouse in Pemberton square, to which the case has been transferred for trial from Cambridge.

It seems that when Fresno Dan left the courtroom two women attempted to stop him, but he brushed by. The women followed. One of them placed her hand upon his shoulder. Fresno Dan threw off or shook her off but she clung. A real struggle followed, during which, Fresno Dan slipped to the ground and injured his knee. He finally broke away and the women left hurriedly.

Called Before Master.

As a result of Fresno Dan's trouble last night, Mrs. Maggie Paper Parker of Cambridge, one of the those who has attended the trial from the very beginning, was called before Master Pevey at the instance of Attorney Nesos, counsel for the Russell estate. Mr. Pevey talked to her earnestly.

Every seat in the courtroom was taken today by spectators ranging from schoolboys to gray-headed men, and from old women to little girls.

"Fresno Dan" testified today. He said:

Well do I remember walking with my father upon the beach at Chelsea, and through the marshes of Revere, on my way to Boston, when a boy. I did not use t ones a larger town than Melrose then. That is where I went to school! With my father I played dominoes and other games. I went to the Emerson street school in Melrose. I played ball with the boys. We did not have any special rules then. I had a big black rubber ball, about a foot in diameter. I remember Harris' little store, with pistols and guns in the window. He was then a man about forty, with dark whiskers. There used to be an old hotel but there, a small place, which I do not see any more.

The witness identified what he claimed to be his grammar school diploma and an old faded photograph of the school in Melrose, resulting from which he was attacked and had a hand-to-hand fight with women sympathizers of Dakota Dan, the rival claimant, became known today for the first time. DAKOTA DAN IN POOR DEBTOR COURT ON TAILORS' CLAIM

"Dakota Dan" Russell was not at the hearing in the will case today. He was in the poor debtor's court to answer to a claim of $48 by Hyman Greenbaum, a tailor.

Here is what Greenbaum says Dakota Dan bought of him:

One dress suit.
Two overcoats.
Pair of socks.
One derby hat.
A white dress suit tie.
Studs and links.

In opening the examination of Dakota Dan today Attorney Aronson questioned the defendant about the Russell estate. Dakota Dan said that he claimed half of the estate, but did not know just what that half amounted to.

'TAX BACHELOR MAID TO HELP OLD BACHELOR'

Mrs. Frank W. Page of Marlborough street, a well-known lecturer, declares that bachelor maids should be taxed five dollars for the support of old bachelors.

She has already presented her views at the State House before the Committee on Taxation, and she does not agree with Miss Charlotte Smith, who wants the bachelors taxed for not marrying.

According to Mrs. Page:

Bachelor maids are no longer nonentities.

They are the most efficient workers in the business and professional centres of this city.

As social workers they are carrying on charitable and philanthropic work in this and other cities.

They are a growing power all over the United States.

They are better able to pay a tax of five dollars for the bachelors' support than the bachelors are able to pay this same sum for their support.

They are not refusing the offer of marriage of men who truly and sincerely love them.

They do not want the initiative in marriage proposals. All they want is true love in marriage.

Value of Bachelor Maids.

Mrs. Page said today:

"In speaking of bachelor maids being taxed five dollars a year, I believe that they are of more value to the State and nation than we are generally giving them credit for.

"They are in so many ways fulfilling responsibilities that make them the peers of the old bachelors. They are capable of showing their ability in many directions. They are self-respecting and able to do their share in the public weal.

"Bachelor maids can no longer be spoken of as nonentities in the corporate life of the community. They are not always women who have failed to get married. They are not women who have not proven equal to the tasks placed before them.

"In many an office of importance in this city they are today doing the work that is telling and influential.

"Go up to the State House and study the difference between the bachelors and the bachelor maids in that conspicuous place.

"Pity the Bachelors."

"Who are you proud of? You are proud of those bachelor maids who always look neat and attractive, who work steadily, who can answer some perplexing question, who are mistresses of detail, who make altogether a better appearance than the bachelors. The latter are more to be pitied than the bachelor maids.

"Nothing at times is so helpless as an old bachelor.

"He has grown old rapidly. He has lost interest in almost everything. He stands almost alone, addicted, and in the end seems to care for him. He is to be pitied, I say.

"Often his clothes will show the absence of care. The look of neatness has vanished. Nothing seems to interest him, and after a time he gets soured with life and lets you know it.

"But the case is not so with the bachelor maid, generally speaking.

"When she is past forty, she is buckling on the armor of self-protection. Her business experience has given her such knowledge that she is wise in her use of money, and while forty-five thirty she spent more for her clothes, after that age she proves herself equal to assume the cares and burdens of life and is preparing for the future.

Maybe She is Happier.

"She is happier than if she were married to a certain type of man.

"She has shown that she is able and capable of meeting new duties.

"Don't think for one moment that the bachelor maid is simply one that has never been loved and lost her chance of marriage. The secrets of every woman are not always known so far as her love experiences are concerned.

"The bachelor is becoming part and parcel of every type of organic business and progressional life today.

"She is not turning her back upon marriage. When a man truly loves her she is ready to respond to that love. She does not ask to have the initiative in proposal in marriage. To the man that belongs, and if his love will reveal itself as true and deserving of the love and devotion of a woman, it will be accepted. Don't imagine that bachelor maids are by any means like stranded ships on the shores of time.

Can Help "Old Bach."

"They are better able to take care of the bachelors than ever before. In the front rank they are standing today. They have advanced so far in their efficiency that they can lend a hand to the old bachelor.

"They should be taxed $5 for the support of the old bachelors. If there is any class that needs sympathy today it is an old bachelor, who has sunk down into his own way of thinking and takes a limited view of all his surroundings and grows morbid, cold and pessimistic.

"But think what the old bachelor maids are doing in this city. They are more happy than the bachelors, for they are seeing the ways to be happy. Look at them in special service in this city. Mark the different enterprises in this city which are charitable and philanthropic in their nature and how conspicuous the bachelor maid is in making those enterprises a success.

MRS. FRANK W. PAGE, who declares that the bachelor maids of Boston are doing a great work in business life today and urges that they should be taxed to support the lonesome old men who are single.

Mrs. Page Says Bachelor Maids Are Better able to Pay a Tax of $5 for Bachelors' Support Than the Single Men Are Able to Contribute to the Support of the "Old Maids."

Suffragettes Rip Out Three Trunk Telephone Lines

LONDON, March 6.—Three telephone trunk lines near Llanvarnan, Monmouthshire, were destroyed by suffragettes today. Women militants are becoming very active in the western part of England and much damage is reported daily.

Mrs. "General" Drummond, who will act as the leader of the militants in the absence of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, who, it is reported, will go to Paris for her health, today condemned the government for drawing up a bill to prevent hunger striking.

This bill, which will be introduced when Parliament convenes, provides that women hunger strikers shall be re-arrested after being released from prison because of illness resulting from self-imposed starvation. Re-arrests will continue until the term of imprisonment originally imposed has been served out.

CZAR CHEERED BY THRONGS AT GREAT JUBILEE

ST. PETERSBURG, March 6.—With great pomp, the celebration of the tercentenary anniversary of the accession of the Romanoffs to the throne of Russia was opened here today. It was opened with a salute of twenty-one guns, and immediately afterward Czar Nicholas and the Czarina set out from the palace for the Kazan Cathedral. The weather was clear and brilliant, just right for an outdoor jubilee. Bells were rung, people cheered and huge bonfires were built in the streets. Buildings were draped with Russian flags.

At the Cathedral ceremonies, besides the Czar and Czarina, were many members of the Imperial family, members of the Council of the Empire, the Duma members and all the Cabinet.

The entire populace of St. Petersburg acclaimed the Czar as he drove through the streets at the head of a brilliant procession, consisting of the Grand Dukes, the heads of the army and navy and the chief civil officials of the country.

The secret service agents were especially active, turning back at the railroad station many strangers from other European countries, despite the fact that they held passports. To further guard the Czar against Nihilist plots, all suspicious persons were gathered in by the police and either banished from the city during the celebration or detained in jail.

The most vital feature of the present celebration so far as the people are concerned is the general amnesty which will be extended by the Czar to thousands of his subjects who are now in exile or in prison. It is rumored that Nicholas will extend clemency to several thousand exiles who are in Siberia, and will lift the ban from all his exiled subjects in America.

TWO DAYS' "COP" SAYS THAT JOB'S NOT WORTH $150

James L. Howe, the police officer who worked two nights as the Brighton police force and then quit, said today that it costs $150 to get well started as a policeman, and that if he had that money he would not want to work either as policeman or in any other capacity. Howe says that the job of being a policeman in Boston isn't worth $150.

Howe says:

You need a coat which costs $28, another coat, $22; blouse, $14; a vest, $3.50; trousers, $6.50, and then you want rubber boots, a rubber coat, twisters, two helmets and a cap and regulation shirts and collars—there is a little over $140 right there, and there are some more small items which I forgot. It is too much for a $2-a-day job for a man who can earn $2 any time.

Somehow I like the work. I only put in two nights at the Station 14, out in Brighton. I went around with the fellows, to learn the place, to study the different beats to which I might be assigned. But I would not stand the expense, and really could not.

This Shampoo Helps to Dry the Hair

"It may sound paradoxical to say that shampooing helps dry the hair," writes Mae Martyn, in the Los Angeles Post, "but it is a fact that women using canthrox in cleansing the hair and scalp find their tresses dry quicker than when shampoo mixtures are used. Aside from this, it leaves the scalp in a vigorous condition and gives the hair its natural glossy appearance.

"Next time you wash your head try this simple recipe: Dissolve a teaspoonful of canthrox in a teacup of hot water. Pour on the head and rub briskly until the scalp is thoroughly massaged, then rinse well.

"Canthrox costs but a trifle, but the only certain way to get it pure is to buy an original package."—Advertisement.

SIX FOLK DANCING CLUBS CONTEST AT ROXBURY CENTRE

About three hundred young women from the evening centres, took part in a very interesting and highly successful folk dancing exhibition in the Roxbury Evening Centre. Six folk dancing clubs were represented. Each club gave three features making in all eighteen aesthetic dances, folk dances, drills and ring games. The awards were as follows.

For best drill, South Boston Dancing Club, Helen R. Lenagan, leader. For the best folk dance, Hancock Junior Folk Dancing Club, Marion K. Owen, leader. For the best general appearance, the Roxbury Senior Folk Dancing Club, Marion K. Owen, leader. For the best group, Charlestown Folk Dancing Club, Julia A. Murphy, leader. For the best aesthetic dance, East Boston Folk Dancing Club, F. Lyman Clark, leader.

The judges were Mrs. T. J. Bawker, Miss Lillian V. Robinson and Mrs. Isabella Knubell Whiting.

URGES SAFEGUARDS ON INFANT FOODS

ALBANY, N. Y., March 6.—All artificial or patented infant foods must be approved by the State Health Commissioner, under a bill introduced by Assemblyman Gibbs of New York. Violation of the act is made punishable by five years' imprisonment or a fine of $1,000. Gibbs also put in a bill requiring the physician's or coroner's certificate of death of an infant, under one year of age, to be supplemented by a statement as to the mode of feeding the infant.

JANINA FALLS; 32,000 TURKS ARE CAPTURED

ATHENS, March 6.—The Turkish city of Janina, the city of Epirus, was captured by the Greeks today.

The Greeks captured 32,000 Turkish prisoners.

General Souzo entered Janina with three squadrons of cavalry between 9 and 10 o'clock and raised the Greek flag over the barracks and the government buildings. They found that the Turkish soldiers have been living on quarter rations for a month and all were nearly famished.

The city had been under siege by Greek troops since the outbreak of the Balkan war. The last of the Turkish outworks commanding the approaches to the city fell yesterday.

Essad Bey consented to an unconditional surrender rather than have the bombardment of the city continue.

The capture of Janina was the second great victory of the Greeks. It was a Greek force which captured Salonika, the most important port in western Turkey. The Servians were successful in capturing several cities of minor importance in the interior of Albania and Macedonia, but the Montenegrins are still bombarding Scutari and the Bulgarians have been unable to reduce Adrianople.

FALLS ON L STAIRS.

Christopher Hutchins is at the Relief Hospital as the result of a twenty-foot fall, while going down the stairs from the elevated to the South Station. He is twenty-nine years of age and lives at No. 27 Cabot street, Roxbury.

Kill the Parasites and Save the Hair

If your hair is thin at the temples, or receding from the forehead, or if there is a thin bald spot on your crown—if the brush or comb is filled with hair after you use it—you need a shampoo that will directly attack the parasite that causes the death of hair. Scientists agree that falling hair and baldness are caused by a vegetable parasite that finds its home in an unclean scalp, and is easily conveyed from one person to another.

Mother's Shampoo kills the parasites that cause falling hair. It is a scientific formula that scours the scalp, yet is mild and gentle in action. You can buy Mother's Shampoo from your druggist for 25 cents a package, containing ten shampoos. Dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water, pour on the head and wash, then rinse thoroughly. The scalp will be refreshed and pliable; it won't "pull," nor feel harsh nor dry. It prepares the scalp for a healthy growth of hair, and makes the hair soft and fluffy.

HINGHAM PIER AND 200 TONS OF COAL BURN

The pier of the Nantasket Beach & Boston Steamboat Company at Crow Point, Hingham, with a shed containing 200 tons of soft coal, and the watchman's house, were destroyed by fire early today. The loss is about $6,000. The cause is undetermined.

The pier was about 100 feet long and 75 feet wide. An alarm was sounded from box 65 of the fire alarm signal service. The steamer company is located at Hingham Centre, about four miles away, and all were nearly famished. When the firemen arrived the flames had gained too much headway to be checked. A small extension was saved.

A strong breeze blowing off shore carried sparks and burning brands away from the many Summer cottages in the vicinity.

WOULD THAT EVERY FAMILY KNEW ITS VALUE

The Wish of the Ursuline Sisters of Waterville, Me., in Indorsing Father John's Medicine for the Cure of Consumption

"We, the undersigned, cheerfully recommend and indorse the use of Father John's Medicine as a sure and immediate relief for all colds, throat and bronchial troubles, having used it with success for one of the members of our institution who was threatened with consumption of the throat. Hearing of the many cures by Father John's Medicine, we made a trial and are glad to state that after taking three bottles, a decided change took place, the patient having recovered her voice, which had been impaired for nearly two years. Would that every family knew its value." (Signed) Ursuline Sisters, Ursuline Convent, Waterville, Me.

Remember, Father John's Medicine is free from opium, morphine or poisonous drugs in any form, upon which so many of the so-called cough cures depend for their temporary effect and which are dangerous—we again warn you against them. Not a patent medicine. Fifty years in use.

NEW ENGLAND MEN TO COMPETE IN BIG TITLE MEET

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

MATTY BALDWIN IS SIGNED FOR BOUT WITH BAY WOOD

Oh! It's Great to Be Married

Copyright, 1913, by the International News Service

INDOOR TRACK CHAMPIONSHIPS ON TONIGHT

N. E. BOYS IN BIG TITLE MEET

By T. J. HALPIN

(Quarter-Mile Champion of United States and Canada.)

The greatest number of track and field stars that have ever gathered at an indoor meet will assemble tonight in Madison Square Garden, New York, for the indoor track and field championships.

In previous indoor championship contests, it has been the plan to hold the meetings several months earlier, but this year the date was set as the closing event of the indoor season, and the result is apparent, for every athlete of note in this country has signified his intention of competing.

Stars in 600-Yard Race.

In this great meeting there is one event that stands out most prominently. It is the great 600-yard contest, where five of the leading followers of Mercury will exhibit their speed and gameness, for it will take remarkable gameness to win this event, for the contest will not be won until the last yard is covered and the winner flashes across the tape. The announcement that Melvin W. Sheppard would not compete was a severe disappointment to the thousands of athletic followers in New York, who believe that the famous Olympic champion is one of the greatest runners in the world.

They were banking on seeing the three record-breaking finalists of the 800-metre race of the Olympic games compete again over the 600-yard distance. Sheppard is suffering from internal injuries received in a railroad wreck while en route from Detroit to New York. On arriving in that city his physician counseled him not to compete. He immediately withdrew his entry.

Although this robs the event of some of the local interest in New York, yet the race will be spectacular enough for any "fan" who journeys to the meet, for Sheppard was not regarded as a strong favorite on account of his poor showing in competition during the last few months.

Kiviat May Be Starter.

The other entrants, however, will be on hand and Meridith, Davenport, Bonsip and the writer will vie with each other for the premier honors. It is felt that Lawson Robertson, the Irish-American trainer, will probably start Kiviat in this race if the event is run in one heat.

This would give the wonderful athlete a chance to recuperate for the 1,000-yard race, where he will need all of his great speed to defeat the field entered.

The New England athletes left this morning and are quartered in the Algonquin Motel. The party included O'Hara, Rice, Burns, Marceau, Barwise, High, Lawlor, Hedlund, Silva and the writer, who will report the games for the AMERICAN.

The weakness of the Back Bay organization lies in the fact that they have no weight men entered, while the Irish-American Club will gain 16 points in these events.

AMATEUR BASEBALL TEAMS

Last year the AMERICAN was the leader in amateur baseball, and this year, with the baseball season about to open, the AMERICAN has again taken the lead in boosting the future greats.

The AMERICAN has long been recognized as the best paper in New England for sports of all kinds, particularly baseball. This year an even more extensive campaign will be made into amateur and semi-professional fields.

The amateur teams recognize the AMERICAN as their official paper, and already many have availed themselves of this opportunity, and they are welcomed.

The columns of the AMERICAN are always open for the use of the amateurs, semi-pros and professionals. Send your news in—your challenges. The AMERICAN will fix up dates for you.

TINKER TELLS HOW TENTH MAN COUNTS

BASEBALL COACHING "TIPS"

By SAM CRANE

Joe Tinker says there are ten men in a game of baseball. To the nine who hold regular positions Joe adds the coacher at third base, and asserts that his role is every bit as important as that of any of the others. Of course there are only nine on the side that is in the field, but the side at bat, according to the new Reds' manager, is incomplete without a smart ball player in the box a few feet outside the third base line. Joe said:

"I don't consider the first base coacher a very important person. He may be of some account in catching signs or in disturbing a pitcher, but he has only to take care of the runner at first base, and that runner is in a position to take care of himself. But the man over at third must be alive and must know baseball pretty thoroughly. Innumerable games have been won because the third base coacher knew when to have his runners take chances, and innumerable battles have been lost because 'bone' catchers held up runners or made them go ahead at the wrong times.

"When I was with the Cubs we were always particular about our coachers at third base when a game was tight. I remember one occasion last Spring. We were tied up in the eighth inning and we got a man to second base with two outs. King Cole was coaching at third. Some of us said to Chance: 'Will he know enough to send him in?' meaning, had Cole enough experience and knowledge of the game to coach the runner all the way in from second on any sort of a hit? Chance immediately called Cole to the bench and sent out Artie Hofman in his place. The batter hit a ground hit to the infield. It was fumbled momentarily, and the play was made to first base too late to get the batter. Artie sent his man home without the slightest hesitation and the winning run was scored, although the play at the plate was close.

"The other side didn't score in the next inning and it was our game. But if Hofman hadn't taken that chance at the right time we would have wound up in a tie or been beaten.

"Of course, some may suggest that we might have won any way; that the next batsman might have hit a home run if the runner had been held at third. But the only safe basis on which to figure baseball dope is results. One can never tell what might have happened, but always knows what did happen and plans for the future accordingly.

"I believe a great deal of the recent success of the New York Giants is due to McGraw's efficient coaching at third base. The New York club might have won two straight pennants without his advice, but I have seen lots of close games copped by his team because he knew how to coach."

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

By RILEY

JAKE STAHL'S main squad of world's champions will begin to gather tonight, and the Boston party will leave at 10:03 o'clock tomorrow morning for Hot Springs. Sunday afternoon, when this bunch arrives at the Springs, the Red Sox will be practically complete. They will be away just one month to a day, returning to Boston, April 7, ready to jump out after the pennant three days later. As Stahl will have to play about thirty of his first forty games away from home, it behooves him to have his men right from the beginning, and that is why Jake has been relieved of a load of worry by the splendid condition in which his men have been reporting.

* * *

CONTRARY to the disagreeable weather conditions encountered at Hot Springs, as well as elsewhere in the training camps, last Spring, Stahl has found good weather this month. The temperature has ranged from 60 to 70 and the sky has been bright and sunny from the start. With all four catchers and eight of his twelve pitchers on the scene at Hot Springs, Stahl has a force of men well lubbered up to give the incoming batters a good workout from the moment that they seize their war clubs and begin business at Majestic Park next Monday morning. "Heck" O'Brien and Leonard and Brand, the "rookies," expect to join the squad today.

* * *

ABOUT half the remainder of the team will travel to Hot Springs by a special car engaged to carry the Sox to Arkansas via the round-about Washington-Cincinnati route, over which they are booked. The rest of them, including Tris Speaker, will go individually.

* * *

STAHL believes that his men will be in fit trim to do business with the Pittsburgh Pirates in the nine-game series between the Bostonians and the National Leaguers, beginning on Monday, March 16, and the games have taken on almost the importance of an inter-league clash. Stahl has telegraphed to President McAleer, recently arbitrating the series. Jake recommending Umpire Bill Evans's appointment as "Brick" Owens's partner in arbitrating the series. Jake expects to give his young pitchers a good trial in this series, but aside lineup that is counted upon to bring Boms another pennant. Injecting a youngster now and then for inspection purposes.

AT West Baden, where the Pirates are shaping up to meet the Sox, Fred Clarke has set at rest the report that he would re-enter the game this season. "Not on your life," he said. "There isn't a chance. I'm through. I released myself as a player a year ago and I see no reason why I should reengage myself. I will manage the team from the bench, and you can look for us, by the way, to win this year's pennant."

* * *

CLAUDE HENDRIX, Clarke's star twirler, has not yet signed. Hendrix has demanded a big increase in salary and in Pittsburgh the "fans" believe he ought to have it. Hendrix virtually led the National League pitchers last season, and he is one of the best all-around men in the game. Bobby Byrne stands pat, too. The followers of the Pirates, while counting on beating out the Giants this year, do not see how the deed could be done without Hendrix and Byrne.

* * *

BOBBY WALLACE, the Grand Old Man of the American League, and the man whom Jimmy McAleer would like to see in a Red Sox uniform for old time's sake, recently signed a new contract with the St. Louis Browns for his eighteenth season, although McAleer would like to have him in Boston to share "Heinie" Wagner's job. Owner Hedges of the Browns says there is not a chance that Wallace will ever leave St. Louis as long as Hedges continues to run the club.

* * *

"I'M not trying to trade Wallace and I don't expect to trade him," says Hedges. However, he's in demand. Wallace is a great ball player. That's the kind, so why should I let him go? Wallace has a job in St. Louis as long as he cares to hold it. Furthermore, he'll never receive a cut in salary. He's one of the greatest ball players St. Louis ever owned."

* * *

McALEER, the Sox magnate, and Wallace have been bosom friends for years. Besides playing ball together they have fought each other on the billiard table these many years. If he joined the Red Sox, Wallace could spend his time, when not "subbing" for Wagner, playing ball-like with the head of the world champions.

WADSWORTH-HENDRIE POSTPONE MATCH

C. Desmond Wadsworth and Ernest Hendrie did not resume their Lowell competition at the B. A. A. yesterday, as Hendrie reported to the committee that he was indisposed as a result of the strenuous squash rackets match they played the previous afternoon. Hendrie told the committee that he would be ready to resume the competition tomorrow. In addition to the fencing bout, they will also run both of the scheduled races on the "gym" track, if not too fatigued after the first of them.

YALE SELECTS MEN FOR EASTER TRIP

NEW HAVEN, March 6.—Captain Blossom of the Yale baseball team has announced his squad for the Easter trip. The squad selected is: Pitchers, Scott, Dyer, Brown, Giles, Pendleton and Ridley; catchers, Burdett and Hunter; first basemen, Riddell and Reinhart; second basemen, Shear and Harpham; shortstop, Captain Blossom; third base, Reilly; outfielders, Cornish, Dunpelly, McGalle, Scofield, Falsey and Middlebrook.

BROWN BEATS HARVARD.

Brown won from Harvard, 33 to 21, in the gymnastic meet in the Hemenway Gymnasium last night.

Pilgrim Seven to Meet Frontenacs in Hockey Clash

The Lineup.

| PILGRIM A. A. | | FRONTENACS. |
|---|---|---|
| Small, Lw. | | Reid |
| Fitz, C. | | Millen |
| Grant, Cp. | | Broom |
| Whitney, Rw. | | Crawford |
| Davenport, Rw. | | Nickerson |
| Bent, Lw. | | Stanton |
| | c. | Connors |

The Pilgrim A. A. hockey team will clash with the Frontenacs of Kingston, Ont., at the Arena tonight and a hard and fast game is expected by the "fans."

Harold Davenport, the point, who was unable to play with the Pilgrims last week because of an attack of tonsilitis, is back with the team and he will probably get into the game tonight. If the contest should prove too strenuous for him he will be replaced by W. A. Telford, the Tech man, who played such a good game against the Sherbrookes.

The Frontenacs arrived in Boston this morning and had a short workout at the Arena.

YALE CREW WORKS OUT ON THAMES

NEW HAVEN, March 6.—For the first time this season the Yale crew rowed outdoors yesterday, the squad being split into two divisions, thirty of the men under the direction of Captain Snowden reporting at the boathouse for work on the harbor in pair oared boats and the forty remaining men working on the machine and in the boat at the Yale gym. The freshman oarsmen are working out on the harbor, but until the water becomes smoother no attempts will be made to take out the eight-oared shells.

REVERE BOYS IN MEET SATURDAY

The annual Grammar School meet for the town of Revere will take place next Saturday afternoon in the High School "gym." It is the plan of the director of athletics in that town to furnish competition for all of the youths engaged in grammar school work. The list of events is as follows:

Fifteen-yard dash; 15-yard potato race (6 potatoes); standing broad jump; running high jump; relay races, eighth graders; relay races, ninth grade pupils; one-eighth-mile run.

Three prizes will be given in each event, except the relay races, which will be four.

FISH BOOMING NEW "GYM" FOR HARVARD

Hamilton Fish, Jr., captain of the 1909 Harvard varsity football team, is now busy at work booming the $2,000,000 gymnasium, which has been proposed for Harvard by the open forum. The former Harvard captain is spending much of his time interviewing prominent and wealthy graduates of the university, and, when he is satisfied that the proper support can be had for the project, he is to make his report to the Student Council at Harvard, which now has the matter in charge.

ZBYSZKO WINNER IN WORCESTER MATCH

WORCESTER, March 6.—A crowd of 2,000 in Mechanics Hall saw Jack McGrath of Worcester beat Charley Kegley of New York in the preliminary bout and Zbyszko defeat Joe Rogers of New York in the main match.

DELMONT IS WINNER IN FAST CONTEST

DETROIT, Mich., March 6.—In eight fast rounds at Windsor, Al Delmont of Boston had a bit the best of Patsy Brennigan of Pittsburgh, though the milling was so even most of the time that many of the "fans" thought a draw was the proper award.

By GEORGE E. PHAIR

THE LAW OF THE GAME.

I AM through—crowded out of the push;
A has-been and out of a job,
Save perhaps for a spell in the bush.
To trail with the down-and-out mob.
There is no place today in the show
For a fading old-timer to seek;
A veteran—aging and slow—
For I'll be thirty-seven next week.

* * *

I remember the day of my prime—
The whirl and the sweep of acclaim,
Before I surrendered to Time—
A veteran jeered from the game;
But now my profession is done—
I stuck till they called me a freak—
I've come to the end of my run—
For I'll be thirty-seven next week.

JOHNNY EVERS finds it necessary to warn the players against working too hard in their training grind, a scribe at Tampa tells us. Must be the youngsters he's referring to. Veterans don't hurt themselves by hard work.

THE Garden A. C. of New York has drawn the bars up on Luther McCarty and won't permit him to box there for months, is what some Gotham sport writer would have us believe. Promoters don't bar champions, they're too big an attraction. And, besides, New York recently offered Luther a $10,000 guarantee to fight.

THIS IS TO BE SUNG.

EVERY little ball team has some troubles of its own; every season some one shows his head is solid bone and every magnate who has a feeling that a champ club he's wrestling nearly always ends a stealing off where he can be alone.

WRESTLING AND WRESTLING.

I took dad to a wrestling match;
His eye the sport sure did catch;
He liked the rough-and-tumble stuff,
Liked to see them raise a huff,
Viciously they rushed each other,
As though life's breath they would smother;
They hauled and mauled and tossed about,
As the boob crowd let out its shout;
Dad, too, a boob spectator, he
Could not see what a farce it be.

NOT wishing to waste his speed in no account fights, a Western boxer put lead in his shoes. Had he ever been in Boston there might be a suspicion that he hit upon this idea watching the Pilgrims run bases last season.

The scouts today are hardy guys,
Who roam the bush with eagle eyes
And track a Cobb, or some such prize,
And nail him unawares.
And later on a howling mob
Will yell like mad for Tyrus Cobb.
But no one knows who did the job,
And no one ever cares.

BAT NELSON GIVEN SOUND BEATING

ATLANTA, Ga., March 1.—Frank Whitney of Cedar Rapids, Ia., was over Battling Nelson here by a wide margin. There was no question as to who won, although it was decided in advance to call it a no-decision contest. The Hatchet's wonderful punch-absorbing ability alone saved him.

WOMEN WATCH PAPKE-KLAUS IN TITLE BOUT

PARIS, France, March 6.—Frank Klaus, the hard hitting Pittsburgh middleweight, won from Billy Papke of Spring Valley, Ill., on a foul in the fifteenth round here last night. The contest was staged in the Cirque de Parce and was witnessed by a record-breaking crowd of fight "fans."

Klaus fought a seasoning battle from start to finish, and was complete master of the situation at every stage of the game. Papke was unable to force his opponent to give ground and he resorted to rough tactics on several different occasions in the early part of the bout. He was repeatedly warned by the referee, but he paid no attention to the words of the third man in the ring. Billy did some fast work in the fifteenth round and he was sent to his corner by the referee and Klaus was awarded the decision.

The bout was advertised as for the middleweight championship of the world. Klaus has been winning with great regularity during the past two years, while Papke became an idol in this country when he defeated Georges Carpentier, the sensational French middleweight.

The defeat of Papke was a big surprise to the Frenchmen, who had made him a topheavy favorite. They believed that he would dispose of Klaus just as easily as he had from Carpentier. But they were sadly mistaken.

The bout between the two German American boxers aroused more interest in this country than any previous meeting of two leading mitt wielders. Many of the leading families in France occupied boxes at the ringside, while a large number of women also witnessed the sport, and sipped at cups of warm tea between the rounds.

Klaus will probably be signed to clash with Eddie McGoorty of Oshkosh, Wis., at the local club within a few months. McGoorty has already been cabled an offer to come here and box Klaus.

ARRANGE HARVARD TENNIS SCHEDULE

A Spring schedule for the Harvard tennis team, arranged by the manager, but not yet approved by the athletic committee, includes six dates, all in May. The schedule:

First Real Game for Pilgrims

New Pitching Stars on the Slab

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

ATHENS, Ga., March 6.—The youngsters of the Boston National League squad walked around today with a sprightliness that showed that the lameness of limb and the soreness of body were wearing off. By tomorrow the agonizing part of Spring training will be over and from that time on their development will proceed rapidly. Some of the veterans of the team are, however, still walking flat footed, like a venerable colored waiter in a long dining room.

This afternoon the first practice game of the season is billed between teams A and B. Six innings will be played and the two teams will line up as follows:

Team A.—McKechnie, 3b., Maranville, ss., Titus rf. Metz. 1b., Kirke, c.f., Tyler, lf., Smith, 2b., Rariden, Gonzales, c., Perdue, Gervais, Hogue, p.

PLAYERS SHOWING GOOD FORM.

Great rivalry has developed, and the game will be for blood.

Manager Stallings is proceeding with considerable system. For example, he took four of the young pitchers off in a corner of the field and with Fred Mitchell for catcher and "Mary" Calhoun as first baseman, he coached the youngsters long and earnestly in the best methods of keeping a base runner on first.

He began with Bill Rariden, the big, husky fair haired kid from the Northwest, and showed him how to stand in the box with a runner on first; how to hold his hands; what motions to make and what not to make; how to throw quickly to first and how to make a quick delivery to the batsman.

Next Paul Strand (Rube Marquard's double, who was cut from a left hander's point of view. Left fenders have it easier, anyway, as few base runners will take a lead on a southpaw. Gervais, of Vancouver, and Claude Thompson, the former Red Sox recruit, were taken in hand next.

In all, Stallings put in more than an hour with them. They all proved to be willing pupils and acknowledged that Stallings had taught them things they never knew before.

To Play Ty Cobb's Team.

It is expected that games between first and second teams will be played daily, so that the boys can be in shape to tackle Ty Cobb's team when it comes here. Stallings is ignorant as to the makeup of Cobb's rebels. It was first announced that Cobb and Rucker, the Brooklyn pitcher, would lead the team, but Stallings believes that Tyrus has frozen out Rucker, and that he will bring a nine of townmen he has coached, and to whom he will pay about $5 apiece to make the trip.

The gate receipts may reach $2,000, the sum realized last year when Cobb came here with a team and played the University of Georgia. Cobb paid off his players and went home with $1,000 in his pocket. Tyrus knows something of the methods practiced in high finance. Cobb will never starve even if he quits baseball, as he threatens to do unless President Navin, of the Detroit club, comes across with the $15,000 salary demanded by the great outfielder.

Cobb was a guest of Stallings at the bitter's plantation last week, and he told the Boston manager he would surely quit unless he got what he wanted. Stallings and Cobb went partridge shooting twice. Stallings says Cobb hunts with the same skill and judgment that he plays baseball. He is untiring as a walker and was as fresh as a daisy when Stallings was ready to drop from fatigue.

Jay Kirke, the outfielder and fence buster, has arrived. He blew in from New Orleans, where he has been working out with Sam Crawford, the Detroit holdout. Jay put in such good licks at the Crescent City that he was ready for anything when he got here. There are two more players on the way, Catcher Whaling and Drummond Brown.

Myers Refuses to Sign.

Hap Myers is still holding out, and if his arm is still as weak as it was the last time he showed in the big leagues, he better keep on holding. He would have trouble in showing better than "Mary" Calhoun has shown at first. Mary is about the size that Ty Cobb showed when he first broke into the big league. He is just as supple in his movements and he has the same kind of swing when he is batting.

Calhoun gave a great exhibition in conjunction with Stallig, Smith, Bues and Devlin as a windup of the morning practice. It was lightning batted work they exhibited. Smith, who is a brother of Charley Smith and whose baseball experience has hitherto been confined to amateur and semi-pro. teams, si ried the onlookers because of the ease and grace and skill of his play. He covered second and scooped up the grounds and made accurate throws on everything that came his way.

Still Lacks Experience.

He has a fine build for a ball player. It is probable that he needs considerable seasoning, but he is a natural ball player, and Stallings is mightily pleased at the way he handles himself.

Mack, Sweeney, Maranville and McKechnie formed another infield and gave a good account of themselves in practice, but they were not as fast as the other infield.

NOTES FROM THE TRAINING CAMPS

AMERICAN — NATIONAL

YOUNG ORR, who is out for an infield position on Connie Mack's Athletics, is playing a wonderful game in the practices of the former world's champions. Orr has been taking Barry's place, and his hitting warrants him a long trend in the big leagues. In the exhibition game against San Antonio he banged out four clean hits in as many times at bat.

MANAGER JOE BIRMINGHAM of the Cleveland Naps has made one selection. He has stated that he will start the season with Buddy Ryan in centre field, and is sure that the Cleveland fans will be satisfied with his work.

TEACHING the art of bunting is one of the main factors in the program of the Cubs at Tampa. Bunting is almost a lost art with the players now, although many of them try it at times.

EDDIE McDONALD, formerly of the Pittsburgh Nationals, is covering first for the Cubs, Bergamier second, Cheriion short and Phelps third. The pitching squad is under the personal direction of Brennahan and Needham.

THE new violet-trimmed traveling uniforms of the Giants made a big hit with the Marlin fans and the shock nearly caused several runaways. Many persons thought a band of blanket Indians had invaded the precincts when the players paraded the main streets in the new scenery.

WHILE Jim Thorpe is being played all over the field at Marlin, Manager McGraw is working the Indian at first base most of the time. He shows signs of great improvement at that position, but his work has not been satisfactory even to himself and he is taking great pains to please McGraw.

Springfield High Oarsmen Have First Workout on River

SPRINGFIELD, March 6.—Taking advantage of the fine weather conditions, coupled with the fact that the river was practically free from ice, the first squad of high school oarsmen had their initial workout of the year on the Connecticut yesterday afternoon.

The practice was under the direction of Captain Willard. Coach Harry Bennett, who is now in Becket, is expected to assume charge of the workouts next Monday. Captain Willard selected his crew for the first spin from the squad that has been drilling on the machines for the past few weeks. The makeup of the eight was: Bow, Moorecraft; No 2, Leonard; No 3, Kerr; No 4, Noble; No. 5, Gendron; No. 6, Cross; No 7, Willard; stroke, Pirkle. Assistant Manager Demond acted as coxswain in the absence of candidates for that position. Captain Willard ordered a brief spin in which the men worked well considering that it was their first taste of real rowing for the season.

In addition to these candidates, eighteen others responded to a general call for crew material. Among the experienced candidates to report besides those in the first squad were, Dunlant, McClench, Hayhurst, Johnson, Taylor and Merry. An even dozen new recruits were on deck as follows: Williamson, Shaw, Brown, Darling, Howe, Pope, C. Baker, Bliss, Chamberlin, Starr, Stevens and Duffey. Several members of this aggregation are built along rugged lines and show every indication of developing into excellent oarsmen.

SPORTING BRIEFS

HELENA, Mon., March 6.—The bill regulating twelve-round boxing contests has been passed by the Senate and is today in the hands of the Governor awaiting his signature.

Jess Willard Wins Bout.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., March 6.—Jess Willard, the Kansas white hope, knocked out Jack Leon, the former wrestler, in the fourth round of their schedule ten-round bout here last night. It was an easy victory for the Kansan.

Ray Bronson Scores K. O.

ST. LOUIS, March 6.—Ray Bronson, Indianapolis, knocked out Lee Kelly of St. Louis, at the Irish-American A. C. here.

White Sox Play Today.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., March 6.—The White Sox first team will play Oakland today, having arrived here late last night. They play Frisco Friday and Saturday. The second team plays Los Angeles today and the two squads will not meet until Chicago is reached April 8.

Play for Championship.

HAVANA, March 6.—Marshall, the American champion, plays Canowski in the final round today in the chess tournament here and a draw will entitle him to the championship, as he is one point ahead of Capablanca, the Cuban crack. Both won their games yesterday.

Jap to Referee.

NEW YORK, March 6.—William Job will referee the Packey McFarland-Jack Britton bout, to be held at the Garden A. C. tomorrow night. The State Athletic Commission overruled the protest of Dan Morgan, manager of Britton, who said while he knew Job was honest he was too friendly with McFarland.

Veteran Driver Dead.

FAUNTON, March 6.—Augustine H Dore, a veteran driver and trainer and well known on the grand circuit in his palmy days, is dead today. Dore developed many noted

Stahl Anxious to Get Going

Reeruits Show Like Veterans

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 6.—Not until the Red Sox regulars come to town will Manager Garland Stahl give his warriors over a single workout daily at Majestic Park. Thus far he is operating with only pitchers and catchers. However, he originally planned giving them a fortnight of unusually hard work, so that they would be sure to be ready for the forthcoming nine-game series with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

There is another excellent reason why Stahl wants his pitchers absolutely ready on time. That is because the Red Sox have the worst of the early section of the American League schedule. They open at home. Then they hit the road and will make the full round of the seven towns before returning to Fenway Park.

All in all, the Red Sox are scheduled to fight something like forty of their first fifty battles on foreign soil. Stahl does not intend to get too gay in the scraps with the Pirates.

SERIES SHOULD HELP RED SOX.

Nevertheless, he well appreciates the fact that the lengthy series with Clarke, Wagner and Co. should give his world's champions the best possible sort of practice and result in sending them to the post ready for whatever happens. Stahl counts upon giving his young flingers—and when Dutch Leonard and Grover Brand, the demond globe trotters, light here he will own seven new hurlers—plenty of work in the contests with the Pirates.

Judged by looks and the limited amount of work they have done in the last two brief workouts on the green here, Stahl's new boxmen are unusually promising. What's better, they know how to grace the lobby of a big hotel. It is naught but the truth that Stahl is not controlling any "hoodlums."

Ainsworth, Moseley, Watkins, Martin and Foster, Sir Jacobs' five rookies, have done all that has been asked of them to date. They strip well, stand on the rubber as if they knew how to pitch and cavort at regular big leaguers at the afternoon and evening buzzfests in the rotunda of the Eastman Hotel.

"Fans" Watch Men Practice.

The bugs have started to witness the midday frolics in goodly number. Last Spring, while the Red Sox were here, they seldom played to over thirty-six paid admissions. There was the big Dreyfus show at Whittington Park, on the other end of town, as well as the Dodo burlesque at Fogel Field, across the street, to buck.

Then, neither the tourists or the natives which it is now. If the bill becomes a law it will protect the public, boxing promoters and boxers.

WOOD TO MEET BALDWIN AT SALEM

By JACK CONWAY.

MATTY BALDWIN, the stout-hearted Charlestown lightweight, has been matched to clash with Bay Wood of Fall River in a twelve-round contest at the second show of the new Salem A. A., which will be held on next Monday night. This bout should be even better than the O'Keefe-Wood "go," which was held at the Salem organization Monday evening.

The Bunker Hill lad has not performed in a New England ring since he vanquished "Knockout" Brown in a twelve-round battle at the Pilgrim A. A. last Fall. Matty, however, is in good condition and should give a fine account of himself. He won from Pat Bradley, the Englishman, in Philadelphia, on last Saturday, and on Tuesday night of this week he lowered the colors of Cy Smith before one of the New York clubs.

"YOUNG" M'DONOUGH, who fought a slashing twelve-round draw with Gilbert Gallant of Chelsea at Manchester, N. H., on Tuesday night, does not believe in remaining idle long. Hector Molines' pedigo will journey to Lowell tomorrow evening, where he will engage in a little punch-swapping contest with Johnny Dohan of New York.

THE M'Callum boxing bill, which is now before the committee on legal affairs, has aroused a great deal of interest among the followers of the ring game. The bill is similar to the Frawley law, which governs boxing in New York, and it would legalize the most popular indoor sport in the world.

It is believed that the new measure will be passed by the committee before

BRITTON-PACKEY READY FOR BIG BOUT TOMORROW

NEW YORK, March 6.—The big supply of tickets for the bout between Packey McFarland and Jack Britton at the Garden A. C. tomorrow night is nearly exhausted and now a premium is being offered by the local men for the choice seats. Long before the time for the principals to enter the squared circle the house will be taxed to its greatest capacity.

No bout in recent years has aroused as much interest as this contest. Each boy has thousands of followers in this city and they will be at the Garden to cheer for their favorite.

Both Britton and McFarland finished training yesterday and both are reported to be under the stipulated weight. McFarland will weight in at 137 pounds at 3 o'clock and this means that he will enter the ring carrying about 140 pounds. Britton expects to be about two pounds lighter.

The boys are so evenly matched that the betting fraternity has been slow in putting up wagers. It is expected that McFarland will be made a 10 to 9 or 10 to 8 choice.

Britton is confident that he will defeat the Chicago stock yard favorite and he will place a wager on himself. He said today:

"If I don't beat McFarland I will never ask for a return bout. I am so confident that I cannot help saying so. I have conquered Packey into another boot and I cannot help expressing my opinion on what is going to happen."

McFarland is in the same spirits and his entire camp is telling today how Dan Morgan's second champ is going to get defeated.

This bout is between the two classiest "lightweights" that has ever been seated in this city. Both boys are scientific boxers, fast, and can stand up and sling. The local boxing followers are divided as to the merits of the bout, some believing that when two scientific boxers meet they are too careful and therefore present a slow bout.

Britton has been training at Rye Beach and each day hundreds of his followers have visited his training quarters and have watched him go through his workouts. McFarland arrived in town from Chicago on Tuesday and finished up his training at Hawkin's roadhouse.

The Mystery of Mary

A Thrilling Story of a Strange Disappearance and of Love Triumphant

By GRACE LIVINGSTON HILL LUTZ.

Copyright, 1912, by [illegible] I presents Co.

PART I. (Continued)

All the time she had been talking he had held her hand. Now, as she finished, he lifted it to his lips and kissed it tenderly. [illegible] was going to make it so. She [illegible] she didn't want to do.

The matron started on a voyage of discovery up the hall and down again, with penetrating glances into the room, but the two did not see her.

"Oh, my poor dear little girl!" groaned the man. "And you have passed through all this awful experience alone! Why did you not tell me about it? I could have helped you! I am a lawyer."

"I thought you would be on your guard at once and watch for evidence of insanity. I thought perhaps you would feel it necessary to return me to my friends. I think I should have been tempted to do that, perhaps, if any one had come to me with such a story.

"One could not do that after seeing and talking with you. I never could have believed it. Surely no reputable physician would lend his influence to put you in an asylum, yet I know what things have been done.

"Your cousin must be a desperate character. I shall not feel safe until you belong to me. I saw two men hunting about Mr. Phillips' house as I came in, and I went in. They were looking up to the windows and talking about keeping a close watch on some one named Mary. One of the men was tall and slight and handsome, with dark hair and eyes; the other was an Irish, and wore a coat too large for him, and rubbers. I went back later in the evening, and the Irishman was hovering about the house."

The girl looked up with frightened eyes and grasped the arms of her chair excitedly.

"Will you go with me now to a church not far away, where a friend of mine is the pastor, and be married? Then we can defy all the cousins in creation. Can't you trust me?" he pleaded.

"Oh, yes, but—"

"Is it that you do not love me?"

"Your Own Gown Here"

"No," she said, and her eyes drooped shyly. "It seems strange that I dare to say it to you when I have known you so little." She lifted her eyes full of a wonderful love light, and she was glorified to him, all uneasy dressed though she was. The smooth Madonna braids around the shapely head, covered by the soft felt hat, seemed more beautiful to him than all the elaborate head-dresses of modern times.

"Where is the 'but' coming? Shall he no now?"

"How can I go in this dress?" She looked down at her shabby shoes, rough black gown, and cheap gloves in dismay, and a soft pink stole that was not.

"You need not. Your own gown is out in the office in my suit case. I brought it with me, thinking you might need something you might, I mean"; and he stalled "I have kept it always in my office, partly because I wanted the comfort of it, partly because I was afraid someone else might find it, and desecrate some of the dear, common place wondering."

It was at this moment that the matron of the building stepped up to the abashed couple, resolved to do her duty. Her lips were pursed to their thinnest, and no pleasure was in her face.

The young man arose and asked in a grave tone:

"Excuse me, but can you tell me whether this lady can get a room here to rest for a short time, while I go out and attend to a matter of business?"

The matron noticed his refined face and true eyes, and she accepted with a good grace the $10 bill he handed to her.

"We charge only fifty cents a night for a room," she said, glancing at the humble garments of the man's companion. She thought the girl must be a poor dependent or a country relative.

"That's all right, said the young man cheerfully. "Just let the change help the good work along."

That made a distinct change in the atmosphere. The matron went and returned to wash the girl with the discontented upper lip. Then she sent the elevator boy to carry the girl's suit case.

As the matron came back to the office, a shabby dressed man hustled out of the open door into the street, having first cast back a keen, furtive glance that searched every corner of the office.

"Now," said Dunham reassuringly, "you can go to your room and get ready, and I will look after the few little matters I called on my friend, the minister this morning, and I have looked up the legal part of this affair. I can see that everything is all right in a few minutes. Is there anything you would like to get for you?"

"No," she answered, looking up half frightened, "but I am afraid I ought not to let you do it. You scarcely know me."

"Now, don't say a word of that. We have to talk to you. How long will it take you to get dressed? Will half an hour do it? I'm getting late."

"Oh, it will not take long." The eager flush overspread her whole countenance. Her companion's tone was so strong and comforting, his face so filled with a wonderful love, that she could not doubt the sudden love of all life.

The elevator boy appeared to the doorway with the familiar suitcase.

"Don't be afraid, dear heart?" whispered the young man, as he attended her in the elevator. "I will soon be back again, and then, they shall be together!"

The Happy Text

It was a large front room to which the matron led the way. The ten-dollar bill had proven effective.

It was not a "fifty-cents-a-night" room. Some one—some guest of kindly patron had put a small illuminated text upon the wall in a neat frame. It met her eye as she entered—helpless and be glad." Just a common little picture card, it was, with a phrase that has become trite to many, yet it seemed a message to her and her heart leaped to cheer. She went to the window to catch a glimpse of the man who would soon be her husband, but he was not there, and the hurrying people reminded her that she must hasten. Across the street a slouching figure in a baggy coat looked shabby and disreputable at glance. She trembled and drew back out of the sunshine, remembering what Dunham had told her about the kidnaps of the night before. With a quick instinct, she drew down the shade, and locked her door.

PART II.

THE rubber-clad feet across the way hurried through the door into the cigar store in front of which he had been standing, and where he had a good view of the Y. W. C. A. Building. He flung down some change and rushed to the use of the telephone. Then, with one eye on the opposite doorway, he called up a number and delivered his message.

"Drive to the side door. She is in a room all right at the Y. W. C. A. place, for I see her at the window. She came with a fine gentleman, but he's gone now, and she's broke to stay a spell. You'd best be there at once. Adrigat. Hurry up!"

He hung up the telephone receiver and hurried back to the post in front of the cigar store.

Meanwhile the bride-elect upstairs, with happy heart and trembling fingers, was putting on her own beautiful garments once more, and arranging the waves of lovely hair in their old accustomed way.

His Well-Laid Plans

Tryon Dunham's plans were well laid. He first called up his friend the minister and told him to be ready; then a florist not far from the church; then the department store where he had spent some time that morning.

"Is that Mr. Hunter, head of the fur department? Mr. Hunter, this is Mr. Dunham. You remember our conversation this morning? Well, I have found the lady I selected to the Y. W. C. A. Building at once. Yes, just send a coat to suit her size. I remember I was to be C. O. D., and I showed you my certified check this morning. Yes, I will be up at once. Will it take you to get it there? Good. All right. I have the boy wait? Good-by! Good-by."

His next move was to order a carriage, and here it stop at the florist's on the way. This done, he consulted his watch a few minutes and then decided that he could leave. With nervous haste he went into a telephone booth and called up his fiancee.

To his relief his mother answered.

"Is that you, mother dear? Yes, I'm here. Are you well? That's good.

"Yes, I'm in Chicago, but will soon be home. Listen, mother, I'm going to tell you that may startle you, though there is nothing in it to cause you fear. I shall die if you do not think there was something on my mind for some time." He paused for the murmur of assent.

He knew how his mother was looking, even though he could not see her—that sort of letter ready for anything. He wanted to spare her as much as possible, so he hastened on.

"You remember speaking to me about the ring I wore?"

"Tryon! Are you engaged?" There was a sharp anxiety in the tone as it came through the hundreds of miles of space.

"One better, mother. I'm just about to be married!"

"My son! What have you done? Don't forget the honorable name you bear!"

"No, mother, I don't forget. She's fine and beautiful and sweet. You will love her, and our world will fall at her feet. No more remember that love is very blind. Tryon, you must come home at once. You shall die if you disgrace us all. Don't do anything to spoil our lives. I know it is something dreadful or you would not do it in such haste."

"It's All Arranged"

"Nothing of the kind, mother. Can't you trust me? Let me explain. She is alone, and legal circumstances which it would take too long for me to explain over the telephone have left her dependent. She has no one to have my immediate protection.

"We are going at once to Edwin Terwin's church, and he will marry us. It is all arranged, but I felt that you ought to be told beforehand. We shall probably take the 'night express for home. Tell Cornelia that I shall expect constant attentions interrupted to the hotel here inside of two hours."

"But, Tryon what will our friends think? It is most extraordinary! How can you manage about announcements?"

"Bother the red tape, mother! What difference does that make? Put it in the society column if you want to.

"But, Tryon, we do not want to be conspicuous!"

"Well, mother, I'm not going to put off my wedding for to put minute for the sake of some sets of pasteboard. I'll do just reasonable thing to please you, but not that."

"Could you get a chaperon for her, and bring her home to Ivy Hall to have the wedding at our house?"

"Impossible, mother! In the first place she never would consent. Really, a cannot talk any more about it. I must go at once or I shall be late. Tell me you will love her for my sake until you love her for her own."

"Tryon, you always were unreasonable. Suppose you have the cards engraved at once, and I will telegraph her to the engraver if you will give me his address if you prefer you can get them engraved and send our from there. That will keep matters still."

"All right, I'll do it. I'll have the engraver telegraph his address to you within two hours. Have your list ready. And, mother, don't worry. She's all right. You couldn't have chosen better yourself. Say you will love her, mother dear."

"Oh, I suppose I'll try," sighed the stern disciplinarian, "but I never thought you would be married in such a way. Why, you haven't even told me who she is."

"She's all right, mother—good family and all. I really must hurry—— Good-by!"

"But what is her name?"

"Good-by!"

"What Is Her Name?"

"Say, mother, I really must go. Ask Mrs. Parker Bowman what she thinks of her. Good-by! Cheer up. It'll be all right."

"But, Tryon, her name'——

The receiver was hung up with a click, and Dunham looked at his watch nervously. In two minutes his half-hour would be up, yet he must let Judge Blackwell know. Perhaps he could still catch him at the office. He sometimes left downtown late. Dunham rang up the office. The judge was still there, and in a moment his cheery voice was ringing over the wire.

"Hello, Judge! Is that you? This is Dunham—Chicago. Yes, the business is all done, and I'm ready to come home, but I want to give you a bit of news. Do you remember the young woman who dined with us at Mrs. Bowman's and played the piano so well? Yes, the bright one. Well, you half guessed that night how it was with us. I think. And now she is here, and we are to be married at once, before I return. I am just about to go to the church, but I wanted your blessing first."

"Blessings and congratulations on you both!" came in the deep tones over the phone. "Tell her she shall be at once taken into the firm as confidential counsellor on condition that she pays for me when ever I ask her."

A gruff goodness entered the young man's heart as he again hung up the receiver, at this glimpse into the future years of future possibilities. He hurried into the street, forgetful of conveyers. The half-hour was up and carriages were few.

In the meantime, the girl had slipped into her own pretty gown, and arranged with a relief and joy she could scarcely believe were her own.

Had it all been an ugly dream this life she had been living for the past few months, and was she back now in her rest and peace and real life? Nay, not going back, but going forward.

The sweet color rose to her beautiful face at thought of the one who, though not knowing her, yet had loved her enough to take her as she was, and lift her out of her trouble. It was like the most romantic of fairy tales, this unexpected lover and the joy that had come to her!

How had it happened to her quiet, conventional life? Ah, it was good and dear, whatever it was! She pressed her happy eyes with her fluttering, nervous fingers, to keep the glad tears back, and laughed out to herself a joyful ripple as she had not uttered since her mother died.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

BOTH KNEW IT

"MARIE," said Mr. Valesburg to his wife, "Yes, John."

"I have something on my mind that I must tell you before I can be happy."

"I shall be glad to hear anything you have to say, John."

"It is hard to tell you, but I can't hide the truth any longer. Marie, I married you under false pretences."

"So I judge."

"Do you remember what it was that brought us together?"

"Can I ever forget it, John? We were at the seaside. I was drowning and you saved me after I had given myself up for lost."

"And afterwards in gratitude you married me?"

"Yes, I felt that I owed my life to you."

"Marie, I deliberately planned that rescue business. Where you believed yourself drowning the water was only waist deep. You were never in danger."

"I knew it, John," she answered. "I had one foot on the ground all the time."

A CHANCE

Fortune Teller (to overdressed maid)—Your husband will be your second husband, Maiden (eagerly)—Unless what?

Fortune Teller (knowingly)—You dress more economically after marriage than you do now.

Mrs. William Tilton, who originated plan of waking people up by use of "Think-It-Over" poster.

Reformers to Wage Campaign by "Think-It-Over" Posters

"THINK-IT-OVER" posters are being put up on the Back Bay houses.

These posters will shortly be placed in every large city of this State.

The posters contain a few statements about evils which afflict us.

They give facts and figures.

It is a new way to educate people about what causes these evils. Miss Eugenia Frothingham of Beacon street has already given $100 to have printed and shown in many cities in this State a poster that tells how much you can buy when you save 10 cents a day.

The posters are meant to start people thinking. There is no moralizing on them; just plain facts and figures, which you cannot dispute.

The committee of Back Bay people who have the matter in charge is composed of Dr. Charles Putnam, Dr. J. H. Elliot and Mrs. William Tilton.

The idea originated with Mrs. Tilton, who is a most practical woman and believes that if we want to cure evils before people you must change your methods.

This is an entirely new idea. Every poster will contain facts that will set the people thinking.

Mrs. Tilton said, when asked about the scheme:

"Think It Over' posters are going to be placed in every conspicuous place in the city.

"What are these posters? It's a new way to educate the people."

"We want people to think more about some of our evils. You can read them and get a distance off. The man on the back waiting for his car may see one on a fence near him, or the passer-by on the street may see them. We want everyone one to read them. We want the average person to read them. We want the boys and girls to read them.

"Here is one that we have recently prepared, and Miss Eugenia Frothingham has just given us $100 for the expense of printing it. It will be put up in this city and in southern Massachusetts:

5 barrels of flour,
or 120 pounds of butter,
or 130 dozen of eggs,
or 730 pounds of sugar.

Think this over.

"You see it is just a simple little poster "All of them will be upon subjects that concern evils that afflict us. There will be no moralising, no sentimentality, no rebuking, but just simply putting facts before the reader in a common sense way.

"People require not so much to be informed, as to be reminded at times. So these posters will remind the average man when he is complaining about his lot.

"There are over 30,000 persons insane from the use of alcohol in the United States and each of these persons costs the State nearly $400 a year. We want to save this money. Just a little warning on the part of a poster will set some people thinking.

"We do not expect to change every type of evil by these posters, but we hope to set people thinking and, much more, to keep them thinking.

"We have read that there were 26,672 convictions in Massachusetts in one year and that 21,000 were due to alcohol, this is worth thinking over.

"The posters will give you other facts about the same matter.

"John Mitchell is going to write one poster for us. He is going to be on the relation of liquor to labor.

"We want to get facts before people. We want the school children to write these posters and talk about them, as they pass along to and from school. We want the mill workers to notice them as they go to work every morning to or from every evening from the mill.

"We intend to have one poster bearing Dr. Jacobi's opinion regarding the use of alcohol as virulent poison. He is the greatest authority on that subject.

"Then we have another by Dr Forel. These men know what they are talking about. We intend to give the gist of their talk on posters in a large type.

"What I read that there were 26,672 46 per cent. of persons in almshouses in Massachusetts are there because of drink. That is worth thinking over. We are making facts known.

"We are going to place some of these posters right in front of our homes in the Back Bay.

"They will be read, when nothing else would draw attention.

"You can't preach people into temperance. You must apply different methods. If special evils are increasing among us let us get the most convincing facts and parade them before the eyes of every one. If they are not true, why then we will get at figures and facts that are true. But have facts and they will change you will find on posters comes from authoritative sources.

"In short, these posters are going to make people think. There is no use of preaching to old methods, so we have adopted this one to show people that they have the opinion of the facts that are worth considering."

The Manicure Lady

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"I WAS thirty today," said the Manicure Lady, "just to think, George, that a girl has reached her thirty-first year and——"

"And ain't married," prompted the Head Barber.

"Not that, fleshy head, not that," snapped the Manicure Lady. "Goodness knows I have had enough proposals from poor fishers that aspired to be Head Barbers and rich idiots that ought to be poor ones, but I have gave them all the frozen face, as one of them poses once said. There ain't no man going to take a hatter made out of a slip of gold about a inch in diameter and one to make me walk toward no preacher or justice of the peace until I have found out that aside from his heart beating kind and true he ain't getting no worse than fifty beans per week, with a chance for a raise in sight.

"No, George, you can get that marriage idea out of your head right off the reel. I was thinking about something a whole lot different. I was thinking about a book I read the other day that told how a girl got to be thirty and hadn't seen one of her dream comes true.

"First, she had wanted to be a painter, then she had wanted to write stories, then she had wanted to wed opera, all of this time what she was really doing was teaching school just to keep a roof over her and her mother's head.

"The years went and went, George, so the novel says, and one day she woke up on her thirtieth birthday and looked in the glass and found two gray hairs on one temple and six on the other, and saw some wrinkles comming under the corners of her eyes, she went and accepted a fat old man that must have been old enough to play football when her mother was born. She married him because she was rich, and they had a swell wedding, and after that her mother didn't know no want and her husband snored happily ever afterwards."

"I know you had married me for your mind," said the Head Barber.

"I don't have any such mean thing in my mind," said the Manicure Lady. "I was only thinking how pitiful it is, George, that so many people dream of things to do in this world that ain't got the brains to do, nerve, or the ambition, or whatever it is. Look at poor Wilfred, my brother. He has been working these last few years to get to write good poems, and the ones he thinks is the best in the ones the editors will buy and print. Look at the others. He can't connect at all. If shattered dreams was bringing a easy living, Wilfred could sell his for enough to buy the subway privileges.

"And look at me. As I was saying, here I am in my thirty-first year and not a bit further ahead than I was when I started nipping off hangnails. It is true that I can use my implements a little more gentle on fellows that ain't fresh than on fellows that is, but any poor yellow dream thing of course it is for me to try to pick them sheep from them goats it is three days, so that ain't much of a accomplishment. That's what I mean, George.

MUSTEROLE

No Plaster! No Blister!

Everybody knows how the good old-fashioned mustard plaster relieves a cold, an ache or a pain.

Your mother and your grandmother always applied it. The plaster burned awfully. But it surely brought relief.

MUSTEROLE is the same remedy without the plaster and without the blister.

MUSTEROLE is a clean, white ointment, made with the oil of mustard.

You don't have to bother with a plaster. You simply rub MUSTEROLE on the spot where the pain is—rub it in briskly—and the pain is gone!

Not a blister is left, even on tender skin! Instead it has a delicious, comforting effect.

There is nothing like MUSTEROLE for Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Tonsilitis, Croup, Stiff Neck, Asthma, Neuralgia, Headache, Congestion, Pleurisy, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Pains and Aches of the Back or Joints, Sprains, Sore Muscles, Bruises, Chilblains, Frosted Feet, Colds of the Chest (it prevents pneumonia). Millions of jars of MUSTEROLE are sold annually. It is a staple in the large hospitals. Doctors and nurses use it and recommend it to patients. Ask your doctor.

At your druggist's, in 25c and 50c jars, and a special large hospital size for $2.50.

If your druggist cannot supply you send 25c or 50c to The Musterole Company, Cleveland, O., and we will mail you a jar, postpaid.

DON'T STAY GRAY! DARKEN YOUR HAIR BEAUTIFULLY

SAGE TEA WILL

A Mixture of Sage and Sulphur Prevents Dandruff and Falling Hair.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur no one can tell, because it does so naturally; so evenly. It is also splendid to remove dandruff, cure itching scalp and stop falling hair.

Preparing this mixture, though, at home is a mussy and troublesome task. For about 50 cents a bottle you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy. Some druggists put this mixture up themselves but make it too sticky, so insist you want "Wyeth's" then there will be no disappointment.

You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. Do this at night and by morning all gray hair disappears and after another application or two becomes beautifully darkened, lustrous, glossy and luxuriant than ever. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and you'll look years younger. Hundreds of happy women all over the country have discovered that this simple concoction is the best of all dandruff cures.

The Social Calendar

THE annual dance of the Hasty Pudding Club is the leading attraction in Boston society tomorrow. It is to be held in the clubhouse in Cambridge and will be in the evening. Scores of New York Philadelphia and Washington society people are expected to be present. The dance is always one of the big events among the younger set and always attracts young people from the society centres of the East.

Mr. George von L. Meyer, Jr., son of the former Secretary of the Navy, is in charge of the arrangements this year. A number of the members of the Washington society set as well as those from the North Shore, are expected to be present as a special compliment to young Mr. Meyer.

"Holly Tree Inn," a series of pretty tableaux, will be presented in Jordan Hall tomorrow for the benefit of the scholarship fund of the New England Conservatory of Music. It will be repeated Saturday.

Among the soloists will be Miss Marion Feeley, a gifted soprano of Brookline, and Miss Frances McDonnell.

Society people who are interested in home economics and housekeeping are expected to be present in large numbers tomorrow afternoon at a meeting at No. 1 Joy street, under the joint auspices of the home economics department of the Massachusetts Federation and the New England Home Economics Association.

The speakers will be Mrs. Julian Heath of New York, on "The Housewives League;" Miss Sarah Louise Arnold, dean of Simmons College, on "Information Centres for Housekeepers;" and George B. Purington, manager of the Charles River Co-operative Society, on "Co-operative Buying."

The city of Boston music department is to give an organ recital tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock at the Arlington Street Church.

DANGEROUS

"John," said a father to his son one day, when he caught him shaving down at the upper lip, "don't throw your shaving water out where there are any bare-footed boys about, or they might get their feet pricked."

SLEEPLESSNESS

You are tired and worn out, but you cannot sleep.

Sleeplessness shatters health. It BREAKS DOWN the STRONGEST. The nerves are being tortured and they rebel. Nearly always stomach trouble accompanies it.

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

The Children's Compendium

CHAUNCEY DEVERE APPLETON almost filled the editorial chair. Though barely past seven years of age, he looked, as he pondered the hair from his mansard, as one nearing man's estate.

The larger a son grows the more the father appears to shrink. It seems there must be just so much material in the family, and if any had noticed how much Lysander John was beginning to resemble a badly chewed lead pencil they were not surprised at the appearance of his son.

But no one had noticed. It is the joy of childhood that it never notes how its elders look any more than a hungry man observes a crack in his plate.

Editor Chauncey Devere spread out the letters he had received and prepared to answer them, the replies to be printed in the Children's Compendium, a paper read at the sessions of the Children's Congress.

"You have helped others, help me," appeared in the sprawled writing of an athlete of five. "My only Christmas gift was a ten-dollar bille. What shall I do?"

Making a note on a pad for a future stinging editorial, Editor Devere replied: "Be charitable. Remember your parents are bringing You Up Right."

"Will you please," wrote a miss of eleven, "write a proper form of announcement of my debut into society?"

Devere smiled grimly, and wrote: "Miss Gabrielle Lee announces her society debut. It is further announced that owing to the expense and work entailed by the naughter coming out her mother will now go further back in."

"How," wrote a girl of nine, "shall I punish my brother, who is older than I?"

"Wait till some one pays him a compliment," replied the editor, dipping his pen into his nerve blood, "and decorate his life with it in such a way that he would rather be dead than receive no other."

He decided not to print the letter from a son, aged three. It was too full of pathos. "I will ask son of Three Years," he wrote, "to be patient. His parents are sadly old fashioned in their belief that a son has no voice in family matters until he is twenty-one, and pays board. In these days of equal rights the child is allowed a voice in family affairs before he is two."

He grieved wearily as he advised children with baby brothers and sisters to capitalize their parents' admiration of them by shutting them up in cages and charging other children two pins to see them.

Then he wrote an editorial that appealed to every child's heart, in which he urged that when a child is caught in mischief its grandmother be made the court of justice. The thought of such a children's court was soothing. His eyes closed, his pen dropped, and the great editor fell asleep.

Cupid in a Quandary

By Nell Brinkley

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal Examiner

And Cupid knows not whether to advise his clients to take for their own the Daughter of some proud house or the Maid who waits so demurely.

CUPID is in a quandary these days—with all the advice that has been given about Mistresses and Maids. Sometimes he is tempted—and does advise his clients—to take the little Maid in preference to the daughter of the house, who lords it over the shrinking girl who waits on her.

Cupid knows the Maid is better natured than her Mistress and is every way more desirable for a life partner—and away down deep in his heart he often wonders why it is that more men, when they come a-wooing the spoiled little lady of the house, do not turn to the girl who waits so demurely—and carries and fetches, and serves and vanishes—just as her haughty, unthinking Mistress bids her.

And here's a little bit of advice Cupid gives to many who go a-courting the daughter of some proud house—"Observe the little Maid who waits on your lady love—and think to yourself if the Maid would not make a better Mistress of your heart and home."

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IT LOOKS DOUBTFUL

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I've asked a lady friend to accompany me to two different places of amusement and she has refused both times, saying that for religious reasons she would not go.

Now I've found out that she is going to attend a most public affair, so called a "racket," of which she said nothing to me. Do you really think she cares for me according to these actions?

C. E.

APPARENTLY she doesn't. But give her the benefit of the doubt. There may be reasons why she accepted this invitation that have nothing to do with the state of her heart. The only way to find out what she really thinks is to ask her.

LISTEN TO YOUR MOTHER

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am eighteen and have been going with a young man of nineteen for a little over a year. He claims he loves me and I love him dearly. He promised me a diamond ring for an engagement ring, but now his mother says he can't marry until his sister gets married, and she has no fellow yet. My mother scolds me every day. Tell me what I shall do.

F. B.

A SCOLDING every day is a trying ordeal both for your mother and yourself. End it by putting a stop to all need for rebuke. There is no prospect of marriage; he can't afford a ring. Let there be no engagement.

In five years he will be, I hope, in position to buy you a ring, regardless of his sister's unappreciated right.

Helen, Begrimed with Paint and Putty, Defiantly Shocks Her Callers

"I'M afraid you'll have to go back," declared Helen, as she unwrapped the glue and sandpaper Maggie had just brought. "I find I'll need some putty too."

"Putty!" sullenly repeated Maggie who always repeated being sent out for things.

"Yes, you see these panels." Helen stooped over the desk from which she had just torn the worn, ink stained green felt. "They've been filled with putty once," digging the kitchen knife into what were evidently some old screw holes. "I'll have to fill them again and run a new surface before I can put the new felt on."

"Don't know where I'd get any putty around here," protested Maggie.

"Why, they keep it at any paint store—there's one just below the grocer's. Five cents worth will do."

When Maggie had gone, Helen began a vigorous sandpapering of the patches of old glue and green felt which she had not been able to scrape off with a knife.

The desk had belonged to Warren's grand mother—a fine old "bureau" desk, in which the brass top drawer pulls out and lets down, disclosing tiny drawers and pigeon holes and the green felt-covered writing space.

Several times lately Warren had remarked that the felt was getting shabby and should be renewed, and last night he had told her peremptorily to have it done.

Doing the Work Herself

"Got that cabinetmaker who did over the sofa. And have him fix that chiffonier drawer while he's about it. Can't open it without knocking everything off. One of those sideboard drawers sticks, too."

But the cabinetmaker informed Helen he would have to take the desk to his shop, and he could not tell just how much it would be.

Helen, who always wanted to know exactly what a thing would cost before she had it done, resented this, and ended by buying some new felt, which she was now trying to put on herself.

When Maggie came back with the putty Helen unwrapped the newspaper, through which the oil had already soaked, and with eager interest felt the soft, clay-like mass. As a child she had always loved to play with putty, and she was soon filling the screw holes and smoothing them over with an almost childish pleasure.

The green felt she had already cut the exact size, and now she spread the scraped desk surface with glue and carefully fitted it on.

When at length she stood back to view it there was not a wrinkle in the felt nor a lump underneath to mar its smoothness.

Elated with the success of that job Helen went around to see what else could be fixed up with putty and glue. If geniuses run to antique furniture there is always something that needs attention. A piece of veneering was off the library table and another off the bookcase, both of which Helen had saved, and which she now glued back.

With the can of mahogany stain which she had opened to touch up a few places on the desk, she went around staining over the scars and scratches of the other furniture.

The chiffonier drawer that Warren had complained about needed only a little sandpapering to make it run smoothly. Helen was in her element, for she loved to "potter around" and "fix things up."

General Repairing

But as yet she had found no other use for her putty. It seemed a shame to have all that putty and her hands already grimed up and not be able to use any more of it.

Then, in the dining room, Helen noticed some fine white plaster dust that had sifted down the paneled wall. For some time Maggie had been grumbling about this, and Helen spoke to the janitor, but he had sent no one to fix it.

"Maggie!" called Helen, "bring me that kitchen chair. I'll stop this plaster from sifting down right now."

Maggie brought the kitchen chair and turned it over to form a stepladder. In a moment Helen, with a lump of putty in one hand and a knife in the other, was piling up the crevices at the top of the oak panel, through which the fine dust sifted.

"That's going to show, ma'am," warned Maggie, viewing it critically, for the putty was lighter than the dark wood.

"Yes, I know; just hand me that can of stain there."

Helen had left the stain and the brush in the open dining room window, and now, as Maggie went to get it, the brush rolled off the sill, out the window to the court yard below.

"Well, you'll just have to go down after it," said Helen, crossly, impatient at being delayed with her work. "It's the only one we have."

Resentfully Maggie slammed out the hall door.

When in a few moments the bell rang Helen climbed down the stepladder, provoked that Maggie should be so careless as to lock herself out.

Her hands were covered with putty and paint, and she took up her apron to turn the knob. To her horror it was not Maggie—but Mrs. and Miss Clemens in their best calling costumes.

She Lets Her Callers In

As the hall was dark, they did not recognize Helen.

"Is Mrs. Curtis in?" asked Mrs. Clemens, staring at what she thought was a most untidy maid, for any housemaid would have been ashamed to look as did Helen just then.

With a gasp of astonishment and dismay, Helen had stepped partly behind the door, but Miss Clemens' eyesight was keener than her mother's.

"Why, it's Mrs. Curtis herself!" in an amazed tone.

Just what she said or did in the next few moments Helen could never quite remember, but with some laughing, hysterical comments about this being her "general carpentry and furniture repairing" day, in some way she got them into the front room.

"I'm so sorry we interrupted you," offered Mrs. Clemens, "but the bell boy told us to come right up."

In a dash Helen remembered that a new hall boy had come yesterday. So he had been ignorant enough to send them up unannounced.

Immaculate in their white kid-gloved, sable-furred and broadclothed elegance, the callers were too polite to really stare at Helen. But in quick glances that they tried to make impersonal they took in every detail of her dishevelled hair, soiled wrapper and apron, and hands begrimed with paint and putty. Even her flushed cheek flaunted a smudge of mahogany stain where, with her hand, she had pushed back her hair.

She could have excused herself and gone to dress, but with a sort of fierce defiance she abandoned to duty. Instead, with an assumed bravado she showed them what she had been doing.

"How very interesting! How extremely clever!" commented Mrs. and Miss Clemens, but the tone of their voices implied, "How very curious! How very peculiar!"

"I'm sure you are MOST clever," repeated Mrs. Clemens. "I was never a bit good at this sort of thing, but Carissa does beautiful work in burn leather. A class of her friends go to a studio once a week."

"Yes, mother; but we never do anything really PRACTICAL like Mrs. Curtis. And it must be such fascinating work!"

Neither the emphasis on practical nor the sarcasm beneath this speech escaped Helen.

"Yes, and it's very economical," she added defiantly, for she knew they were thinking she did such things only because she was too penurious to hire them done. "They charge so much for these odd jobs—it seems a shame to pay it when I really love to do them myself."

"You are quite right," gushed Mrs. Clemens, "and I'm sure Mr. Curtis must appreciate your cleverness."

Helen could hardly control a hysterical desire to laugh as she thought how Warren roared at her, for, as he expressed it, "always trying to do things you've no business to do." But she answered demurely:

"Oh, yes, I think most men appreciate any money-saving ability. Don't you?"

Now that she had started, Helen had a perverse desire to make as bad an impression as possible. She took a sort of wicked pleasure in gloating over their shocked sensibilities. How they would talk about her after they left!

Helen's Humor

"Well, we really must be going," purred Mrs. Clemens finally. "We've an engagement for tea. But I'm SO glad we saw you, Mrs. Curtis. It's really refreshing to meet any one with such ORIGINAL ideas."

They trailed out, leaving an odor of French perfume to mingle with that of the paint and putty. When the door closed after them Helen ran straight to a mirror and gazed at her disheveled self. She hardly knew whether to laugh or cry, but for once her sense of humor prevailed.

Her laughter awoke Pussy Purr-mew, which had been dozing on a chair. Helen caught up the kitten and shook it roughly. It was good to have something on which to vent her emotions.

"I'm glad we shocked them!" with another fierce little shake. "Such insincere, superficial, stuck-up people deserve to be shocked!"

The kitten blinked assentingly.

Wonder what they're saying about us now? But we don't CARE, do we? Such narrow, stupid people—we don't care a——"

The desire to use one of Warren's most expressive epithets was strong, but Helen suppressed it and added tamely, "We don't care a fig WHAT they say!"

THE DEAREST BABY

Mrs. Wilkes' Fondest Hopes Realized—Health, Happiness and Baby.

Plattsburg, Miss.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved very beneficial to me, for now I am well and have a good, healthy baby, and our home is happy.

"I was an invalid from nervous prostration, indigestion and female troubles.

"I think I suffered every pain a woman could before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I think it saved this baby's life, as I lost my first one.

"My health has been very good ever since, and I praise your medicine to all my friends.—Mrs. Verna Wilkes, R. F. D. No. 1, Plattsburg, Miss.

The darkest days of husband and wife are when they come to look forward to a childless and lonely old age.

Many a wife has found herself incapable of motherhood owing to some derangement of the feminine system, often curable by the proper remedies.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal.

We challenge anyone to name even one other medicine that has been so successful in relieving woman's suffering as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

That Style? Your Figure? Impossible!

Fat women who are contemplating a new gown in the mode will have to contemplate a reduction of their flesh before they visit the dressmaker unfortunately this is nothing like the hard labor it was when one had nothing but exercise or dieting to get results with. Nowadays a short course of the Marmola Prescription Tablets should bring any woman, however fat, to the proper reduction necessary for her to wear a Directoire gown.

Let her take a Marmola Tablet (made in accordance with the famous prescription and therefore harmless) after each meal and at bedtime and she should very soon be losing a pound a day. The result is accomplished without disturbing one's table customs, forming wrinkles or distressing the stomach, astonishing everybody.

Even one large case costing only 75 cents at any druggist's, or the same amount direct by mail from the Marmola Company, Farmer Bldg. Detroit, Mich., gives positive results. This constitutes the acme of economy.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

Stocks were weaker this morning. The nature of yesterday seemed to have produced a somewhat reactionary tendency. At the opening trading was quiet and prices fairly steady both in this city and New York, with odd lot transactions the local feature.

At the end of the first hour a number of coppers had receded. Osceola was down 2½ and Granby 1¾. Among others to show fractional losses were Butte and Superior, Calumet and Arizona and North Butte. Arizona Commercial, Chino and Utah rose had previously made small gains.

The London market was weaker today. It had a tendency to sag near the close.

The copper metal situation is practically unchanged.

Early Trading in New York.

When the New York market opened it was not as strong as at the close last night and business was about all of a professional character. Investors were slow in making an appearance. Initial prices were irregular and within a few minutes most of the leaders were fractionally lower.

The money market continued to be a check upon speculation. There was no public interest in the stocks, and habitual operators were inclined to be cautious.

After opening unchanged, Steel lost ⅜, Southern Pacific began ⅜ higher, but soon increased this lead to ⅝. Liggett & Myers was again prominent, opening unchanged then making a sudden spurt and gaining 3 points. Canadian Pacific was weak on foreign selling and declined 1¾. Amalgamated was sold in volume. After beginning unchanged it sold down ⅝. Among the other losses were Union Pacific ¼, American Can common ⅜. American Can preferred, unchanged to ½ lower, American Car & Foundry ⅝, American Snuff 1⅝, Atchison ⅝, Great Northern preferred ¼, L. & N. ¼, and Goodrich ¼. Reading advanced and then declined.

The Curb was quiet.

In London there was a mixed tone and traders hesitated over commitments. This was partly because of disappointment over the delay in settling the Balkan war question. Good reports as to business in this country contributed to the firmness of American stocks. Berlin continued to sell Canadian Pacific.

London Copper Opens Unchanged.

It is reported that copper continues to sell in good volume at fifteen cents a pound. The bookings for this month are upwards of 25,000,000 pounds.

Braden production in February was about 1,600,000 pounds, but because of a partial shutdown the smelter output was only 1,250,000. The recovery on ore treated by the mineral separation process averaged 75 per cent.

President Charles S. Smith of the Old Dominion and Arizona companies will start next week for Globe, Ariz., and devote a fortnight to inspection of properties.

D. J. Jackling, now at Salt Lake, says Nevada Consolidated will make a record yield this month.

Financial News in Brief.

The Bank of England's minimum rate of discount remained unchanged at 5 per cent. The weekly statement shows that the bank's reserve to liabilities is now 42.70 per cent. against 48.00 last week and compares with an advance from 42.70 per cent. to 44⅛ in this week last year. Compared with the previous week, clearings through London banks increased £81,551.

RICHARD OLNEY as he looked today when an AMERICAN reporter asked him about the story that he was going to the Court of St. James.

"Nothing," Snaps Olney, When Asked of Embassy Story

Richard Olney gave out a brief interview today on the report that he is slated to be ambassador to the Court of St. James (Great Britain), succeeding the late Whitelaw Reid.

The former Secretary of State in the second Cleveland administration came down the front steps of his home at No. 260 Clarendon street, Back Bay, today at a smarter pace than most men of seventy-seven years can boast.

An AMERICAN reporter and photographer were at hand. The reporter stepped up and asked:

"Mr. Olney, what have you to say about this ambassador report?"

Mr. Olney, With no hesitation whatever, replied:

"NOTHING!"

The reporter passed the job over to the photographer, who had better luck because the camera only desired a new likeness of the distinguished Bostonian.

Mr. Olney is no more enthusiastic about being photographed than he is about being interviewed, and it is not often that he gets to range of the camera's bright eye.

The "interview" by Mr. Olney today is somewhat in line with the one he gave yesterday afternoon when the ambassador report first flew over from Washington. He told the reporters crisply that "somebody is putting up a job on the newspapers."

Today, after escaping the newspapermen, the noted lawyer and Smithsonian regent proceeded down town, presumably to his offices on the seventh floor of the Sears building.

KELLEY WINS IN THE BEDFORD LIQUOR FIGHT

Bedford commuters, before stepping aboard the Boston & Maine inbound locals today, tarried a moment to say "shake" to their town's police chief, Edward P. Kelley, who is also patrolman, reserve officer, night rush, desk sergeant—all in himself. But there were some who didn't stop to do any shaking, and therein lies the story.

Chief Kelley is the winner in the fight made to oust him from office by Rev. David Torrey, pastor of the Bedford Congregational Church. The minister was out for war at the special town meeting to decide whether the town's paid police force—which is Kelley—is to be retained. The vote was "yes" by 104 to 78.

The selectmen appoint the police force—meaning Kelley again, who is sure to keep the job, which pays $900 a year.

DRAMATIC RECITAL AT CONSERVATORY

A dramatic recital will be given by Clayton D. Gilbert's pupils at the New England Conservatory of Music Friday and Saturday evenings. For the first time in Boston, Alfred Butre's little play, "The Open Door," will be given. The part of Sir Geoffrey Transom will be taken by Dr. L. B. Fenderson; that of Lady Tormiuster by Mrs. Florence Close Gale. Six old English songs, in costume, will be presented by Elizabeth Sise, Marion Feeley, Kreiga Crawford, Hortense Drummond and Olga Forsberg. Frances McDonnell will render a Danse a la Crinoline. The program ends with the "Holy Tree Inn," a one-scene drama.

'NOT WORRYING OVER SEAT,' SAYS MR. M'DEVITT

When asked if he would fight an attempt on the part of the Senate to unseat him because of his recent bribery charges, Senator John L. McDevitt of Quincy said today:

"I'm not worrying my head a bit about it."

It appeared from McDevitt's words and manner that he hadn't formulated any plan of defence and that he winked to wash his hands of the whole matter as quickly as possible.

He is at present giving the ephraz a run for honors. SILENCE, spelled in capital letters, is his latest motto.

He is now without counsel. Attorney James H. Vahey acted as his legal adviser less than half a day. Senator McDevitt was seen at Boston University Law School, where he is a freshman. He had just left the lecture room.

"I'll consider not talk any more about this affair," said he solemnly. "Least said the better. It has been very trying on me with my law studies and other duties. Besides I have my folks to consider. I think more of them than I do myself in this fuss. I cannot give out any more statements."

"No, I haven't any lawyer at present, but should occasion arise I can get Mr. Vahey again.

"Will you engage him to defend your interests should the Senate attempt to unseat you as is rumored?"

"I would sooner not discuss that."

"Would you accept expulsion without a fight?"

"I have decided not to talk about the matter any more. I want it dropped as soon as possible, to have it blow over. I have been treated pretty harshly in the newspapers and otherwise.

"Just what prompted me to make that assertion? Well that I must decline to discuss also. As I said before, I'm not worrying."

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

An advance idea of what can be seen at the Locomobile exhibit at the forthcoming automobile show is being gained by thousands who are visiting the local branch of the company at its finely appointed salesrooms at No. 700 Commonwealth avenue, this week.

Manager Kenneth M. Blake has made a ten-strike and created no end of interest by placing his entire show collection on view in the salesrooms. This is the first time this idea has been carried out by any of the local dealers, and that it is a success is shown by the large number of people who are visiting the building. The show rooms remain open throughout the evening.

The show is built around the Little Six Locomobile, tough Big Six types are also on exhibition. There is an air of exclusiveness to the different models, and comfort is the keynote of the open body styles, while elegance predominating in the closed car types.

The centerpiece is a polished chassis of the Little Six, showing the motor, self-started, with which all of the models are equipped. The different models include a Big Six seven-passenger touring car finished in gray with cloth upholstery to match, and trimmings of gold, gray and white. Then there is a Little Six five-passenger touring car finished in brown with natural wood wheels.

There is a handsome closed car in the Louis VXI limousine Little Six, finished in green with green beaded upholstery and green silk curtains and silver mountings and monograms.

The gem of the display is the Little Six Opera Berline, which has many new and original features. It seats seven passengers, all facing forward, and interior is finished in figured crimson satin. All of the fittings are specially designed, even to the corner lamps, with little mirror effects. There is an unmistakable air of luxury to this car, and it must be seen to be thoroughly appreciated.

Among the other cars displayed are a Big Six torpedo, seating four passengers. The color scheme is olive with a cream and pink belt line. Another Big Six is the five-passenger torpedo, finished in fawn color with a chocolate belt line.

FAVOR TEARING DOWN ELEVATED IN CHARLESTOWN

At its meeting last night, the United Improvement Association of Charlestown went on record as favoring tearing down the elevated structure in Charlestown, opposing any changes in the city charter of Boston, and against the so-called Somers system of assessing real estate.

Parker D. Morris declared the cost of tearing down the elevated structure would be enormous, and said the money could be better used in providing facilities of transportation in the outlying districts. His fellow members, however, passed the resolution that the Boston Elevated be asked to consider plans for removing the overhead road. John S. Finnegan caused much mirth by his sarcastic references to the Elevated.

MANY URGE BILL TO CHECK EVILS OF CHILD LABOR

Bills seeking uniform legislation to protect child workers and to amend the fifty-four-hour bill so as to permit women to work in laundries "no more than twelve hours daily, provided the aggregate for the week shall not exceed fifty-four hours," received strong backing before the legislative committee on social welfare.

The child labor measure was drafted by the Commission on Uniform Legislation, and is similar to that to be submitted to every State in the Union. One of its advocates before the committee was Speaker Cushing. Hollis R. Bailey, chairman of the Commission, was another speaker. Richard K. Conant, secretary of the Child Labor League, pointed out that the bill would change the present law so as to prohibit the employment of children under eighteen years of age in dangerous trades; regulate the employment of children in street trades in cities of more than 50,000 inhabitants; further prohibit night work by children; extend the fifty-four-hour law to mercantile establishments, and establish an eight-hour day for children between the ages of fourteen and eighteen years.

MANY URGE BILL TO CHECK EVILS OF CHILD LABOR

Bills seeking uniform legislation to protect child workers and to amend the fifty-four-hour bill so as to permit women to work in laundries "no more than twelve hours daily, provided the aggregate for the week shall not exceed fifty-four hours," received strong backing before the legislative committee on social welfare.

The child labor measure was drafted by the Commission on Uniform Legislation, and is similar to that to be submitted to every State in the Union. One of its advocates before the committee was Speaker Cushing. Hollis R. Bailey, chairman of the Commission, was another speaker. Richard K. Conant, secretary of the Child Labor League, pointed out that the bill would change the present law so as to prohibit the employment of children under eighteen years of age in dangerous trades; regulate the employment of children in street trades in cities of more than 50,000 inhabitants; further prohibit night work by children; extend the fifty-four-hour law to mercantile establishments, and establish an eight-hour day for children between the ages of fourteen and eighteen years.

Battleships Would SAVE Millions

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner.

Men who call themselves wise Democrats, while in reality blind, narrow-minded and ignorant of national affairs, have defeated the building of warships that this country needs.

We are spending now $185,000,000 a year for pensions—and we have a special appropriation of $15,000,000 more.

Do not the narrow-minded Democrats know that the building of needed battleships means PREVENTING FUTURE PENSIONS?

Is it not plain that with Germany appropriating more than five hundred millions for war this year, THE UNITED STATES MUST AT LEAST BE IN A POSITION NOT TO INVITE ATTACK?

A battleship may cost ten millions or more. And it is outrageous that we should have to spend such sums.

But it is infinitely MORE outrageously stupid and cowardly NOT to spend them.

The existence of a decent fleet of battleships, keeping our enemies at a distance, preventing aggression from turning its eyes in our direction, means, it is true, the spending of a hundred millions a year while war continues as a part of "civilization."

But the RIGHT kind of a fleet and proper preparation in these days of war, in which all of Europe is under arms, would enable us to avoid the spending of TWO HUNDRED MILLIONS IN PENSIONS FOR HALF A CENTURY.

The smallest war means a great pension roll. And any ONE year of such a pension roll MEANS MORE THAN THE COST OF ALL THE BATTLESHIPS THAT THE COUNTRY NEEDS.

The man in Congress who voted against the building of ships that are needed TO PREVENT WAR is like the fool who would vote against the spending of a small sum of money for a fire extinguisher.

We want the battleships IN ORDER TO KEEP OUT OF WAR. We want to keep out of war to save life and in order NOT TO EXTEND FOREVER OUR PENSION ROLL OF TWO HUNDRED MILLIONS OF DOLLARS.

No man grudges to the faithful soldier the pension that is paid him. And if the country MUST distribute two hundred millions a year, it is as well distributed among old men as otherwise.

But warships will stop the wholesale killings that result in wholesale pensions.

A SUFFICIENT navy will keep us OUT of the fighting crowd, will save the lives of Americans, and SAVE HUNDREDS OF MILLIONS IN FUTURE PENSIONS.

The AMERICAN'S Financial Page Appreciated

Seldom has one newspaper publisher paid so generous a tribute to the work of another as that of C. W. Barron, owner of the two principal financial daily journals, to William Randolph Hearst for the services he is rendering this country by "supplying sound financial information and opinion to four million people daily."

Mr. Barron's magnanimous recognition of the honesty, the disinterestedness and the quality of the financial and business news and views of the AMERICAN and other Hearst publications was voiced at a banquet attended by financial writers of New York, Boston and Philadelphia, men familiar with economic conditions, and the cordiality with which the compliment paid the AMERICAN was received indicated that Mr. Barron's utterances were endorsed by these experts.

It is pleasing to the AMERICAN and its allied publications throughout the country to find that the efforts to present to the great body of the people correct information on business and financial subjects are thus appreciated. The single aim is to spread enlightenment and dispel ignorance, for the American public are face to face with economic problems of tremendous magnitude, upon the sensible and scientific solution of which depends in large measure the fate of the nation.

These problems are not to be settled by any hole-and-corner methods of the few—these days are over. The bricklayer, the clerk, the fireman, the laborer, the factory worker, the miner, the moulder, the weaver, the porter, the farmer, the railwayman, the wagon driver—these and others, constituting the backbone and sinew of the United States are—rightly—asserting their power. Their votes, rather than the votes of Wall Street, will dictate legislation in the future.

Is it not, therefore, of infinite importance that facilities be given the whole people to become familiar with the real nature of business, finance and industry, so that sound judgments may be formed and only proper laws passed?

The AMERICAN can conceive no higher form of patriotism, and it rejoices that its labors and its aims are appreciated.

"Who's Who" in Mexico

By TOM W. JACKSON

THERE is a man in Mexico
And he is very blue.
He wanted to get out a book,
A Mexican "Who's Who."
It kept him on the jump, it did,
And also on the guess,
For all the "Who's" "Has Beens" became
Ere he could go to press.

It isn't any wonder that
His book was doomed to fail.
A "Who" today tomorrow would
Be lapped fast in jail.

When all his "Who's Who's" were in proof
It gave the man a pain,
To tear it up and start a list
Of brand new "Who's" again.

To make the book most accurate
That had been his intent,
He couldn't tell from day to day
Who would be President,
So he at last gave up the work.
He couldn't get it right.
How could he when a morning "Who"
Was down and out at night—

He Has It--Biggest Place in the Biggest Country

There stands Woodrow Wilson in the place upon which so many millions of men have fixed their eyes ever since Washington made this country a nation.

He holds the biggest position that any man can win in this world today.

He is at the head of the greatest nation in the world—of a nation with nearly all of its problems unsolved, a nation that offers unlimited possibilities to a mind of power.

Wonderful are the opportunities that stretch out before Woodrow Wilson, from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean, from the cold north down to that big ditch that we have cut from ocean to ocean at Panama.

Wonderful is his chance. May he prove to be as big as the office—for the sake of those that depend upon his work.

He as yet has had no opportunity in his new office to show what he intends to do. He will have plenty of work on his hands, if he is to get good results out of the Democratic Congress that has already been guilty of stupid folly, and has filled with justified apprehension all of those that voted to put it in power.

You Can Succeed if You Make Up Your Mind to Do It; Persistency Is Bound to Win

Be Just and Fair in Your Estimate of Others—If Your Neighbor Is More Prosperous Than You, Do Not Conclude That He Is a Thief and a Rascal. He May Be Even a Harder and More Intelligent Worker Than You

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

YOU will be what you will to be;
Let failure find its false content
In that poor word "environment,"
But spirit scorns it, and is free.

It masters time, it conquers space,
It cowes that boastful trickster Chance
And bids the tyrant Circumstance,
Uncrown and fill a servant's place.

The human Will, that force unseen,
The offspring of a deathless Soul,
Can hew the way to any goal,
Though walls of granite intervene.

Be not impatient in delay,
But wait as one who understands;
When spirit rises and commands,
The gods are ready to obey.

The river seeking for the sea
Confronts the dam and precipice.
Yet knows it cannot fail or miss;
You will be what you will to be!

THE sooner you put aside the idea that your failures are the result of trusts and monopolies, and that a cruel Fate has prevented you from achieving anything, the better for you.

There is a man who was deprived of both arms when a small boy. He has become expert with his toes, and makes an excellent living and has become independent.

A man thrown suddenly out of work, by a trust, set forth after a week of rest and relaxation to find a new occupation. He was fifty years old and had worked in one firm for twenty-five years. A too good heart, an extravagant wife and children, had prevented his saving a competence. So he was literally starting life anew.

He had been told that the world wanted only young men; that he would find nothing to do; and that his fate was that of thousands of others in these times.

But the man said to himself: "I will be different from the thousands. I will find work. I will succeed."

And he did. Not at once; he tried several months to obtain what he wanted, with poor success. But after each failure he said, "I am simply being saved for something better. I am in this world for some purpose, and I am not going to be a beggar, or a failure. Success and independence belong to me. They must come."

Of course, with that spirit, they HAD to come.

And today the man is far better placed than he was before the trust came and threw him out of his position. Because he has developed new powers mentally by this experience.

There is no excuse for idleness, despondency and despair in this world.

However hopeless the outlook may seem to you, however difficult the path before you, YOU CAN FIND THE WAY to independence and success if YOU NEVER LET GO.

It may require a long time. But if you had your choice today to start in a dark, foggy valley and slowly starve to death, or to climb a steep, long mountain road which required years of endeavor and fatigue, yet led to comfort and beauty at the top, you would, I am sure, start at once up the mountain.

No matter what boulders lay ahead, you would TRY TO CLIMB OVER. No matter what wild animals roamed over the mountain, you would face all the trials and dangers sooner than stay in the valley and die a slow death.

That is precisely what you want to do now.

To give up all individual effort because there are trusts and monopolies in the land is to stay in the valley and die of inaction. To push on in a determined and never-give-up state of mind is to succeed IN SPITE OF EVERYTHING.

If you chance to see some other pilgrim on the road, riding in an automobile while you walk, do not at once jump to the conclusion that he is your enemy and that he has robbed and cheated his fellow men to procure his method of easy locomotion.

Such thoughts will take your force and vitality away from the object you have in view, and will harm you, while they may wrong your neighbor. It would be well for you to find out how he came to own an automobile before you condemn him as a greedy monopolist. Perhaps he built it with his own skill and labor, paying honest dollars for the materials.

I have known a fisherman to get along a lifetime with a leaky boat and one oar, and to go about "sculling," thinking it was the only way he could do; while another fisherman, with no greater advantages, used his spare hours in studying machinery and built himself a small launch with which he explored deeper waters and caught larger fish. This man was not a monopolist and owed no poorer neighbors an apology for having better means of locomotion than they.

It has grown to be the habit of the unsuccessful to class all people who possess comforts and conveniences in one mass with the idle, selfish, and ofttimes dishonest rich.

There are millionaires who came by their wealth through criminal methods.

There are capitalists who grind the poor and wrong their fellow men. But it is well to remember that there are also honest, noble, unselfish people with fortunes, and capitalists who are a blessing to the world, to the laboring classes and to humanity.

No more unjust and absurd idea ever existed than that mistaken impression of the very poor that all rich or even comfortable people are their enemies and their despoilers.

Equally erroneous is the idea that only the poor have troubles, cares or hardships.

There are wealthy people who work fourteen hours a day with their brains and hands, trying to do good to humanity.

There are men who have become the possessors of large fortunes through honest industry and perseverance, and who are bowed to the earth by the cares and responsibilities of life, and who lie awake nights while poorer men sleep, trying to decide just what is the kindest, wisest and most unselfish course of action to pursue.

To be the possessor of a comfortable sum of money does not mean to be dishonest or unkind, any more than poverty means honesty and unselfishness.

There are all kinds of people in both classes.

However poor you are, try at least to be JUST and FAIR in your estimate of others.

Justice is one of the pillars of character building.

Make yourself everything that is honest, noble, just and deserving, as you climb the mountain of life, and be careful before you condemn your fellow men. The best criticism and rebuke to dishonesty and idleness is honesty and industry.

Dr. Parkhurst's Article

—ON—

Former Secretary of War Stimson's Defense of Inhumanities Practiced by the United States in Effort to Subjugate the Filipinos.

Written for the Boston American by

DR. C. H. PARKHURST

THERE has just been received from Honorable Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War in the Taft administration, a lengthy communication severely criticising an article which was printed in this column, under date of February 7, the aim of which was to set forth the inhumanity practiced by the Government of the United States in its efforts to subjugate the Filipinos.

The special feature of the article to which the Secretary takes exception is what he declares to be my grossly exaggerated statement as to the number of Filipinos that have been killed.

There follows a copy of a letter sent to him in rejoinder:

Honorable Henry L. Stimson,
Secretary of War,
Washington, D. C.

Sir—In acknowledging the receipt of your communication of February 21, permit me in all frankness to write you as follows:

Exaggeration is always reprehensible, certainly if done intentionally and with any purpose of misrepresenting the truth. The figures which I gave had been stated in one of the most carefully conducted and authoritative papers published in New York city, and as they had remained unquestioned and unchallenged I felt a reasonable degree of security in quoting them.

I was myself astonished at what those figures imported; but as our government has been for fifteen years engaged in killing, and as the imperialistic press and governmental authorities had not been any too forward in exploiting the amount of carnage, due, I suppose, to a delicacy perfectly natural under the circumstances, I was prepared to accept almost any figures that might be named.

So that if I quoted an overstatement from an authority that has the reputation of reliability I am not able to convict myself of any gross immorality, nor do I find myself compelled to a state of penitence by any strictures passed upon me.

In your communication you own up to a slaughter of 16,000. Probably there are a good many of the poor pagans that you have not been able accurately to inventory. But let us call it 16,000; that is to say, an average of a little over a thousand a year for the fifteen years. Now, seriously, Mr. Secretary, what do you think of that as a policy of "benevolent assimilation?" It is true they are nothing but pagans. So were our ancestors, in the German forests, but they were not redeemed by having the soldiery let loose on them.

You are a Christian as well as a Secretary of War; and you know as well as I that a policy of killing people as a contribution toward the betterment of those that are left alive is false to the whole Christian idea. It is not so much a question whether it was a hundred thousand of those wild unfortunates that we have slaughtered or sixteen thousand. The fundamental inquiry has to do with butchery considered as a method of enlightening and Christianizing.

You specify some of the admirable results that have been wrought in the islands by our armed occupancy.

That is something which no one is disposed to deny, and if the principle is to be accepted of making this a good world by exterminating all of those who have no longing in that direction, then the method of elevating the Filipinos adopted by the administration of which you are a part would have everything to be said in its behalf. By an extended application of that principle we could go on and precipitate the millennium by organizing raids upon all those who declined to close in with our economic, civic and moral ideals. That is the policy that has been pursued by our government for fifteen years: "Be good according to American ideals or die." And sixteen thousand have preferred death! And there are some more Moros that will be sent to join the sixteen thousand!

Let me repeat that there is in that not a suggestion of the Christian idea, and of that you are distinctly aware. In the teachings of the Master there is not a syllable that sanctions it.

If now as a people we are disposed to abandon the Christian policy as pursued in the civilizing of the Fijis, for example, and to adopt the Mohammedan system of the Koran and the scimitar, let us be frank about it.

Not profess one thing and do another; not mix the two systems to the spoiling of each; a Christian Gospel in one hand and an Arabian sabre in the other. An honest Mohammedan we can respect, and so we can a consistent Christian; but not the kind of Christian that talks Christian and plays Moslem. I am sure you will be as generous in excusing my frankness as I am in excusing yours. Respectfully yours,

C. H. PARKHURST.
